HUNTED FOR A QUEEN AND FOUND A CHARMING ENCHANTRESS

KING MANUEL OF PORTUGAL

THE joys and privileges of being a common, old navy king in these degenerate days are all few. So thinks King Manuel, the boy ruler of Portugal, who did not want to be a king in the first place, and is now, owing to the demands of royal necessities, in the midst of a royal hunt for a queen.

Manuel you must marry, say they. But Manuel is a royalist of his sweet home and is decidedly negligent of the needs of the Portuguese dynasty.

Go to England, said Alfonso, his royal neighbor who profited by his own visits to the island empire, marry an English princess. And Manuel, to escape his watchful terrors and guides at home went to England and to the consternation of all lavished his attention on two pretty dolls of the London stage. Alas! the princesses received scant attention.

It is well known that the marriage of King Manuel was a matter of state and that the king's choice of a queen was a matter of state. The king's choice of a queen was a matter of state.

Only the Senate scholars know how many princesses of Portugal have been married to foreign princes. The king's choice of a queen was a matter of state.

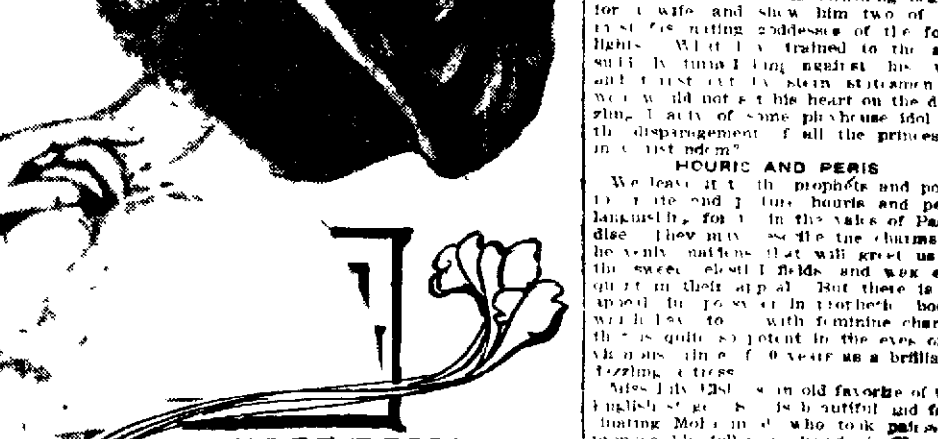

Manuel's choice of a queen was a matter of state. The king's choice of a queen was a matter of state.

Did you ever ponder over the problem of why pretty girls in my plain men? A lady writer has thought the matter out, and thanks the girl who selects a plain or even ugly man it is wise.

The wise girl, she says, is perfectly aware that the ugly man will make a far better husband than an Adonis who is adored by every feminine creature of his chame.

The ugly man is so frequently accustomed to being ignored or slighted by the empty-headed but good-looking woman that the sensible girl would like to see below the surface at once find a faithful admirer and grateful slave.

Compliments from the plain man are of far more value than the easy flattery of the much-sought-after handsome female, who is sure to smile through reason of opportunity and good practice. And, not being so the man lacking in outward charms is less likely to cause his wife jealous pangs or feelings of loneliness at the sight of an empty chair and a torn dress.

Ugly men who marry pretty women are always far prouder of their wives than the romantic Romeo of girlish dream. The former feel grateful to the beauty of their wives, and naturally imagine that the debt of honor is to be paid by the woman they have condescended to wed.

Ugly men are naturally attracted to good looking and the man who is fair to look upon is more tempted to pose as a bachelor.

He has the chance of a summer flirtation, and is less likely to be the brother of homely physical fascinations.

The girl who marries an ugly man can be certain that her love is not mere fancy of the moment rising out of her admiration for a well-cut nose and stows on an ugly man a deeper, more lasting, and more worthy of the man than the quickly given and easily spent affection of the woman who ignores the faults of the handsome lover and considers only the shapeliness of his hands, the color of his hair, and the "lovely voice" as he works his soul stirring sentimental compositions.

Plain men generally marry early in life, as soon as funds will permit, while the good-looking males prefer to enjoy their youth a little longer and to bask in the admiring glances and pleased smiles of the maidens upon whom they bestow their patronage.

OAKLAND'S BUILDING OUTLOOK

Local Architects Preparing for Great Activity as Soon as the Winter Months Are Over

The real estate market in Oakland shows a steady improvement. It is safely out of the holiday doldrums. Henceforth as the year progresses the signs of the times were never more promising and the spirits of realty dealers never more buoyant.

Renewal of Building Activity in Evidence

While the weekly report of the applications for building permits filed with the Board of Public Works do not now show it, later on it will be demonstrated that Oakland is in the whirl of a building boom greater than any it has experienced since the San Francisco fire.

Local architects have a long string of orders for buildings, many of them of a substantial and costly character, which will be started as soon as the rainy season is over. The rains have been so persistent and continuous thus far this winter that the starting of any important new buildings has been necessarily postponed and the progress of those in course of construction has been materially impeded. But the "good time coming" in the renewal of building activity is close at hand, for the erection of municipal buildings, Bankers' hotel and new business blocks will soon be started.

This week Thirteenth street building improvements take a new start between Washington and Clay, where a three and one-half story "Class C" business building is about to be started which will take the place of a one-story structure and will cost in the neighborhood of $45,000. Five stores will occupy the ground floor and the upper stories will be used for rooming purposes. This improvement shows the continued expansion of the retail business quarter and the increasing demand for more accommodations for the new additions that are being made to the population.

Oakland is growing apace in all directions. In the annexed district on the northern and eastern sides the building activity is marvelous. In the Melrose and Fruitvale districts new buildings are going up on every hand. The building trades workers are strongly in evidence there. Most of the new buildings under construction were started before the new year and after annexation, which gave a great boost to the prospects of the entire annexed district. The greatest building activity in the history of the annexed district is promised during the coming summer.

Changes Taking Place on the South Side

The rapidity with which the Western Pacific Railroad Company is building up its freight traffic is making a deep impression on property interests on the south side, which will be accentuated in a most pronounced and unpraiseworthy form during the coming months, when the construction of the municipal wharves and docks extending from Broadway to Myrtle streets is started. The borings for the foundation of the reinforced concrete seawall to be erected as the beginning of this great public work are now being made. These wharves and docks will change the whole character of the south side of the city. That is clearly foreseen now as inevitable. The change will comprise the establishment of new industries and an enormous expansion of the wholesale and warehousing district, for the whole territory is tributary to the commercial water-front where ship and railroad car will be brought together and to the two main lines of the Southern and Western Pacific railroads.

Multiplication of Railroad Traffic

A few years ago the passing of a train other than the Alameda local and an occasional passenger and freight train to and from Stockton and San Jose and way points through the district was a novelty at any time during the day and through the long hours of the night all was silent. Now there is scarcely five minutes during the day of an interval between the passage of freight and passenger trains on one or other lines throughout the day, and through the night the shrill whistles of the locomotives hauling long and heavily loaded freight trains and of the yard engines shunting cars loaded with merchandise or gathering the empties together to make up new trains for the following day continues almost uninterruptedly. Almost every week witnesses the invasion of the territory by some new industry and the gradual crowding out of the old-time residents who still cling to what was thirty years or so ago the most aristocratic quarter in Oakland. It is the unavoidable development of a city coming, by leaps and bounds, to the realization of its rightful inheritance as a great commercial and industrial center.

IMPROVED PAVEMENTS AID REALTY

Plans for Laying Permanent Pavements on Heavily Traveled Streets on the South Side

There is a whole lot of permanent street paving going on in Oakland at the present time, and a larger volume than was ever before attempted in any one year has been planned to be carried out before 1910 is rung out. These street improvements have a direct bearing on the values of property. The rate of relationship between the cost of a street or sidewalk improvement and the value of the property on which it fronts is that the gain in the realty value is many times greater than the cost of the street work.

The initiative has been taken to pave the streets running north and south in the territory east of Broadway and south of Seventh street. During the past three and one-half years these streets, which were previously in good order, have been completely worn out by the enormously heavy traffic they have been required to stand on Oak street, from 1st to 7th. It is only about three years since this thoroughfare was newly paved with macadam. It is this winter practically a wreck, the heavy traffic having ground the macadam into powder which the rains have converted into a lane of mud. These streets are carrying the greater part of the commerce of the city and it comes hard on the property owners to put down costly permanent pavements without any share of the expense being sustained by the city in the light of the fact that business in which the whole city is interested is responsible for the wearing of the pavements. It is difficult to con-vice many property owners that their compensation for the cost of laying a new permanent pavement lies in the increased value of the frontage through the business which wrecked the old pavement and has made the new pavement necessary and that an increased value is given to it when a pavement is laid on the street which makes it all the more serviceable to business.

BERKELEY'S GROWTH.

The conditions that obtain here are well exemplified by the following statement from a leading realty broker in this city.

the residence near the Claremont Hotel where he was supervising the construction of the building Mr Hart's absence here was now nearing completion. This mansion was costing at least $150,000 and it took with the Taylor, Hind, Bousfield and Montgomery residences, the boarding in cost from $20,000 to $100,000, making Clarendon, Oakland's residence the most magnificent residence section on this side of the bay. It is something interesting. I made up a list of the sixteen people who had been in our office and these home town or State in which the following States and cities were represented: Alaska, Washington, New York, Kansas, Oregon, San Francisco, Oakland, Lompoc, San Diego and Canada, showing the people are coming to Berkeley from all parts of the country.

For W Smith we have leased the premises now occupied by the Eastern Cigar Company at the northeast corner of Third and Market streets, to the Oakland Gas and Appliance Company at a total rental of $18.00.

In this connection we might mention that two years ago we negotiated a lease for M. Sparks to the Eastern Cigar Company, the building on Fourteenth street, then occupied by the Theodore Gier Wine Company, and that although the lease was made at the height of the earthquake rents that the company paid today are very low.

The lease is for ten years, with an option of five additional, at a total rental of fifteen years of $144.00. The first fifteen years of $44.00. The last five years of $144.00. The Eastern Cigar Company is just taking possession and is spending $10,000 fitting the entire building for their use.

But the Greek elections may not take place until next September or October—the Cretan Assembly has decided to summon the National Assembly.

PARLIAMENTARY REFORM IN GERMANY

Deputy Suggests Kaiser Give His Speech From Throne in Reichstag Building

WOULD MEAN LESSENING DIGNITY OF THE THRONE

As Practiced Now Parliament Is Opened By Ruler in His Own Palace

(By STEPHEN BURNETT.)

BERLIN, Jan. 29.—The Germans are discussing an interesting question of parliamentary reform. Ever since the Reichstag came together for the first time under the old Emperor William, it has been the practice for the Kaiser to open it by delivering the speech from the throne at the Royal Palace, the deputies assembling later in the Reichstag building for the further transaction of business. A deputy named Schneider has immortalized himself by suggesting that in future the Reichstag should be opened in the Reichstag building and not at the palace, and the suggestion has called forth a variety of opinions.

The Conservatives, who are identified with everything that is reactionary, angrily repudiate the suggestion, asserting that on the day which sees the Kaiser even though with full military pomp, coming to the Reichstag to open parliament, the glory of the Prussian monarchy will pass away, while those who are liberal in politics maintain that in all other parliaments save those of the United States and France, where the chiefs of the government are purposely kept in the background, the appearance of the monarch is a tradition which adds, not diminishes, the glory of the crown.

Under the present system, by which the Kaiser formally opens the Reichstag in his palace, after a church service and the reading out of the message from the throne in the presence of the Reichstag deputies, which ought to be an imposing national ceremony is reduced to a mere matter of court etiquette, and the result is that none save the deputies, take the slightest interest in it.

BERLIN HOMES.

"With all the comfort of the day" is the announcement invariably made on the advertisement boards of new built houses in Berlin, and the house or flat invariably bears out the promise. Indeed, nothing in Berlin has changed as much as in this matter of "comfort." The new houses are built on the best of the German mind, a suggestion of unnecessary luxury bordering on Sybaritism. Except in Berlin proper, the very center of the town, the new houses are built on the outskirts, and no house outside of the mile radius from the Kaiser's palace would obtain a tenant if it had not those comforts which are demanded as quite necessary in Berlin. In fact, the new houses are built to make the city more comfortable, with all the new Berlin houses are supplied are enumerated.

SOME ARE UP TO DATE.

Central heating, hot water, electricity, large bathroom, gas cooking stove and electric light are installations that go without saying, but in not a few of the newest buildings are now to be found the latest in modern living, the "proof safe," photographic dark-room, and even a roof garden with sun bath. The latter comforts are, of course, only offered with flats for ten to fifteen rooms, but even the modern Berlin flat of five or seven rooms is pretty certain to have its vacuum cleaner and iron safe.

In the new houses the old "Berliner Zimmer" is unknown; that vast and gloomy chamber leading to the kitchen and only dimly lighted at one end and where a solitary window looks out on an equally dim and dismal court. One German characteristic, however, even the newest flats, particularly the large flats, retain as great a number of rooms as possible, and are made to open into each other, and thus afford the possibility of conveniently entertaining a numerous company of guests.

BORGIA OUTDONE BY THIS RUSSIAN

Kills Secretary to Palm Him Off as His Own Corpse, Then Commits Suicide

(By STEPHEN BURNETT.)

PARIS, Jan. 29.—The sensational subject of a Russian, the name of Gulevitch, who killed himself in a Parisian bank the other day, following his arrest for murder, has resulted in an investigation which has brought to light the details of a young man's spectacular career.

He belonged to a good Russian family, and when he had completed his studies at St. Petersburg two years ago with an engineer's diploma, he was beset with the idea of making a fortune as fast as he could. He first sold an estate left him by his father, and then insured his life for $50,000 with the idea of passing himself off as dead and collecting the insurance. His plan included the hiring of a secretary whom he would convert into a corpse, and pass the dead off as himself, and collect the insurance.

He employed a young man from Mexico, but this individual refused to accept some money which was offered him, and thus lost his job. His next employer was a Russian, and a week after he had entered Gulevitch's employ he was dead.

Gulevitch then took his secretary's clothes and credentials and started for Paris. Unfortunately, for him, Podolanski, his parents want to see the body of their son's employer, and were horrified to recognize their own boy.

A warrant was issued for Gulevitch's arrest and he was captured a few days later while entering the International bank in Paris. He tried to kill himself with a revolver, and when this was taken away from him, he swallowed poison.

ONCE GLITTERED ON QUEEN'S FINGER

Paris Museum Now Owns Ring Said to Be 3200 Years Old

WAS ONLY A CORNALINE NOW USED FOR HANDLES

Paris Police Are Puzzled Over a Jewel Robbery, the Greatest in Years

(By GEORGE DUFRESNE.)

PARIS, Jan. 29.—The Guimet Museum in Paris has just made an interesting acquisition. This a ring which belonged to the wife of Ramesses II, a monarch of the nineteenth dynasty, who flourished about 3200 years before our era, so that it is something like 3200 years old. There appears to be no doubt regarding the authenticity of this relic of ancient Egypt.

The rings in the famous jewelry shops of the Rue de la Paix are perhaps more striking to the eye than the ring of Ramesses, which is made simply of cornaline, a stone nowadays used rather for making slippers, cuff links, etc., but M. Guimet is very proud of his new acquisition. He obtained it from the environs of Grenoble, from a family in whose possession it had been for a very long time, and who were able to satisfy him of its genuineness.

BELONGED TO PHARAOH.

The ring is thick, with a wide, flat, rectangular head, covered with gold while a thread of the same metal encircles the outside in a groove. There are two names engraved in hieroglyphic characters on the head. These are the names of Ramesses and one of his wives, Cusennu Setepara Neferitarni Mout.

In addition to the characteristic shape of the ring, the perfection of the engraving, in the eyes of the museum authorities, is the visible evidence of the authenticity of the relic.

AUDACIOUS ROBBERY.

An audacious robbery has been committed at the National School of Mines, situated on the Boulevard Saint-Michel. Yesterday afternoon one of the officials was going his rounds, he noticed that a large pane in one of the windows had been removed, and closer inspection revealed the very unpleasant fact that a large quantity of gold and silver, valued at about 100,000 francs, had disappeared from the cuss exposed to view. The police were at once informed, and a careful examination of the premises led to the inference that the thief cut the pane with a diamond, and, passing a hand through, opened the window and so got into the museum, which is on the first floor.

He continued to reach that particular window, however, is still a mystery, as the whole establishment was closed on Saturday, and he must have paid his unwelcome visit after night had fallen. In fact, there are traces of candle grease about the pane, and the diamond well is tolerably evident, as he must have gone straight to the room in which the most valuable specimens were kept. So far there is absolutely no clue. The police are now looking for a man, about eight years ago a nugget of platinum was stolen from the same school and was found afterwards in London.

BAND OF CRIMINALS.

It is difficult to believe that a gang of criminals could operate so barefacedly as has actually been the case at Nanterre.

The whole gang were out the other night. The criminals took up positions behind trees and walls. A man dressed in a Republican, and only emerged when passers-by were robbing came in view. Knives were held at the victims' throats and revolvers at their heads until they were made to open their purses and money. If a passer-by resisted he was either stabbed or shot.

A man named Rey in trying to elude his assailants received three revolver bullets in his back. An electrician was shot in the chest. A man named Besson is at present lying in a critical condition—he has two bullets in his head—and another man was wounded with a knuckle-duster. The ruffians became so bold that they attacked a tram on the Pont de Bezons. A tramcar was stopped, the driver's advance, was seized and thrown from the car. A shot fired at him struck a little girl who was sitting on a bench in the avenue with her mother. The child was removed to Nanterre Hospital in a critical condition.

The police commissary at Puteaux and a strong police force arrived on the scene and arrested three of the criminals. Later on a fourth was arrested. The two from Paris and there was a regular battle through the commune. It resulted in three more arrests. The criminals are all youths, under 19 years of age. They have been recognized as dangerous characters.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—A fashionably dressed man, who described himself as a Mexican, and a black man, who described himself as a negro, were arrested yesterday in a Parisian bank. The two men were seen by a jeweler, who was selling a large diamond ring, and he was told that the two men were looking at the ring. The jeweler, who was a Frenchman, was told that the two men were looking at the ring. The jeweler, who was a Frenchman, was told that the two men were looking at the ring.

GERMAN SAVANT TELLS OF NEW PAGAN TRIBES IN THE CENTER OF UNEXPLORED AFRICAN PROVINCE

Talked With War Chief Semussi, Head Ruler of the Cave Men, Who Recently Cut Up a French Expedition Sent Against Him

(By STEPHEN BURNETT.)

LONDON, Jan. 29.—One of the most important and interesting journeys undertaken in recent years into the heart of the Dark Continent has just been completed by the Dr. Karl Kumm, head of the Sudan United Mission, an organization whose staff consists largely of University students and representatives from South Africa and America, and which has largely established a line of posts through the less known parts of Nigeria, bordering on the Central Sudan, and has penetrated as far into the interior of Africa as that region where French, French and German possessions meet on the edge of the Sahara.

Dr. Kumm started on his perilous journey in the autumn of 1908, accompanied by a number of missionaries, who were left at the various stations en route.

On the completion of his purely missionary work, he found himself 800 miles in the heart of Africa, he determined to push on through the little known and entirely unexplored regions until the ultimate object of reaching the Nile.

His determination resulted in a number of thrilling experiences, including the meeting with one of the most powerful chiefs of Central Africa.

In speaking of this personage, Dr. Kumm said:

"Semussi is today doubtless the most powerful independent Central African chief, and is said to be a hundred years old. He is a Frenchman, and while a French government expedition had been cut up by him, and two French traders had been killed a few months previously, I was received with every show of perfect friendliness. We were in severe straits for I had lost all my oxen and also my best horses. Semussi afforded me every assistance, provided me with an escort and carriers, and supplied me with food.

"It is a dangerous man, Semussi possesses a large number of modern rifles, probably several thousands. I had many interesting conversations with him, and found him to be intelligent and well-informed. He was a Frenchman, and he is situated at the head of a great and beautiful gorge in his capital town of Ndili. Some of his people are troglodytes, living in the surrounding caves. Semussi has devastated the whole country and is said to have killed many, and one continually comes across ruined villages, the results of slave raiding.

"I remained for eight days with Semussi, camping near his palace on a little hill. He was a Frenchman, and he was with me built a residence. Semussi has a great court, his entourage including many old and traveled councillors—men of considerable intelligence.

"In telling of other dangers which his party encountered he said:

"Possibly the worst experience of my journey was on the Kotto River, the main northern tributary of the Sobat River. When I arrived on the bank of the river toward the Kotto, I found the stream was in full flood. The food supply for the two hundred people who were with me had come to an end, and for five terrible days and nights we were in the greatest danger. We had every means of a bridge that was built of creepers. For twenty days we had been traversing a footless country, and we knew that there was another ten days ahead before we could reach the first village in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

The other two still living are set forth as follows: Peggy McGee, of Carrickmore county, who was born in 1799, and is 109 years old, and a quarter million, notwithstanding the fact that the drop in whiskey receipts is over $160,000.

There is a general increase of almost 100,000 in the population of the country, and a quarter million, notwithstanding the fact that the drop in whiskey receipts is over $160,000.

The official report of the sitting of the Duma, at which $5,000,000 was unanimously voted for the reorganization and redistribution of the army, contains some interesting indications of the general character of the proposed changes. M. Douchkoff, as reporter of the committee of national defense, said that the Minister of War proposed far-reaching modifications in all branches of the armed forces.

THREE SUICIDES.

Three persons committed suicide in the first-class railway carriages in Austria the day before yesterday. In the express between Oberberg and Deutschau, a well-dressed man hanged himself on the handle of the ventilator. In his pockets were found $150,000, notes and securities. The man is believed to be a Russian banker.

BALL SEASON OPENS.

All Vienna will be furiously waiting during the next few weeks, for Ash Wednesday, when the ball season will open. So many societies and associations give balls that it is most difficult to find open dates. In some cases three large public balls will take place on the same evening. Save the quadrille, which opens the ball, the waltz is practically the only dance that will be seen, though at the "hunting ball" the old-world minuet will be danced. The waltzes of Strauss and Lohar will be the chief favorites.

EMPEROR'S FAVORITE HORSE.

The Emperor's favorite horse, "Jesaja," has just recovered from a serious illness after a successful operation. "Jesaja" is an Irish mare, dark brown in color, and is one of the noblest and most valuable thoroughbreds of the Imperial stud. She was about eight years old when bought, and is now eleven and a half. The last time the Emperor rode here was in the autumn of 1907, when she did good service. Some time afterwards the illness broke out in her, and, infection was feared. She was isolated and treated by the surgeons of the veterinary high school, Professor Schmidt and Dr. von Tschernak, and at present there is not even a scar to be seen.

NO BIG CRAFT.

The American public has nothing on the minds of Russia in the matter of scientific graft. Chief Inspector Mikloff of the Odessa police, has been condemned to three years' imprisonment for blackmail and fraud.

During the trial it was stated that in his last eight months of office Mikloff had obtained about $1,200,000 from abiding citizens.

These preferred to pay the tribute demanded rather than take risk of being falsely denounced as political suspects, and subjected to the summary methods of the police administration.

(By PAUL VILLIERS.)

PARIS, Jan. 29.—New elements of terror surpassing even the horrors of flood entered the black reign of fear in Paris tonight with the sudden collapsing of buildings as the waters of the Seine fell and as the realization was fully borne in upon the people that they are at the mercy of fire, should a conflagration break out in the devastated zone.

As the swollen torrent of the Seine receded gradually tonight the lawless Apaches took advantage of the darkness and excitement to continue their looting.

The gendarmes, armed with carbines and pistols, were instructed to shoot down all looters on sight. But the Apaches were not only armed and returned the fire, but many of them wore coats of mail beneath their clothing.

The terrible flood began subsiding this morning and as the day advanced the waters fell more swiftly. But as the flood receded conditions became more appalling and new dangers arose hourly. There is no disaster known to human knowledge that could add a thrill to the terrors of the Parisian tonight.

DEATH EVERYWHERE.
Death and the possibility of death is everywhere; the possibility of fire, which might wipe out practically the entire city, is now at its height. With the streets flooded it would have been comparatively easy to start a fire; but as the waters fall the streets are left in a state of confusion and the possibility of fire is now at its height. The primitive system of carrying water in buckets would be the only organized means of stamping out a blaze.

LOOTING AND BLOODSHED.
With misery, suffering, looting, lawlessness, bloodshed, violence, death, starvation, fear and tortures on every side people have not turned to the amazement of the world which will result from this inundation.

RAILROADS CRIPPLED.
Railroad, mail and telegraph communications are crippled. Industries are compelled to be idle. Cable companies are hindered in their operations. The waters go down over an area of nearly three miles, a bed of slime is left and even the army of workmen who are employed by the city are totally unable to cope with the conditions as they arise.

SICK AND DEAD.
Three dead bodies were found floating in the old San quarter late tonight. Two had evidently fallen victims of the Apaches. Their bodies were pelted with many stab wounds and their clothing rifled. The third was evidently a member of the Apaches himself. His wrists were circled by a peculiar bracelet containing long jagged spurs which could be used as a weapon in an emergency.

The Apaches, driven from their haunts along the Seine embankment, now overrun the city. The fear of the people is at its height and the remainder of the day not already wiped out by flood, and secondly, in the reign of law.

LIONESS STRIPS M' CARTHY AXE SEIZE DIAMOND MAN'S ARM TO BONE HITS FIRST KNOT PIN FROM A CAPITALIST

Lives of 10 Stage Hands Are Saved by Beast's Savage Mate

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—Battling for their lives with a ferocious lioness, two men were scratched and torn mercilessly and one of them perhaps fatally injured, early tonight in an unequal struggle in which a second lion in the cage endeavored to beat down his mate and save the men.

The battle occurred behind the scenes in the new California theater, in the Italian quarter on Broadway. G. L. Thurmond, a stage hand, was passing the cage when the beast reached out her paw and drew him to her.

TEARS STAGE HAND'S FLESH.
Hugging him as close as possible to the bars she dragged in his right arm, almost pulling it from its socket and fastening her teeth in her victim's flesh, tore a mouthful, including the muscles, and scraping the bone with her fangs.

The unfortunate man tried to get away. He struggled and screamed, kicking out with his feet. This was the signal for the animal to bring her other paws into play and he was turned over and scratched and clawed on the back, chest and legs.

RESCUED ALSO HURT.
His cries were heard by Charles Doran of 19 Henry street, another attaché of the theater, and he came to his assistance, firing a blank cartridge, hoping to scare the lioness off. He then took a hook and pried at the animal's massive jaws, but was himself caught by one of her paws and received a severe laceration of the left side and other minor scratches.

With the aid of the hook and with the assistance of a second lion in the cage, which, spring on his mate beat her down and finally trampled her in a corner, the fight was finally won and the two injured men were sent to the Central Emergency Hospital.

For two hours physicians worked over Thurmond and he was later removed to the Lane Hospital. He suffered greatly from loss of blood and it is feared that he may not recover.

THINK THEY HAVE Real Mrs. Guinness

LA PORTE, Ind., Jan. 29.—That Belle Guinness, multimillionaire, is in the custody of officers at Wilmar, Minn., was the information telegraphed to Chief of Police Cochrane of this city today.

The belief of the Minnesota authorities is so strong that transportation is guaranteed for a La Porte officer to make an investigation and the persistence with which the Wilmar authorities plead that they have Mrs. Guinness under arrest caused Mayor Burrow of this city to issue instructions this afternoon to Chief Cochrane to make an immediate investigation and it is now the expectation of the latter to leave for the Minnesota town tomorrow.

Must Get License; Fewer Are Wedded

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 29.—That the Cobb law compelling license to marry has caused a permanent slump in the marriage market in this state is shown by the reports received from the various counties by Dr. E. H. Porter, state health commissioner. The reports have not yet been received from all counties, but it is estimated that the total number of marriages for 1909 will be about 30,000, a few thousand greater than last year, but not within 12,000 of the number in 1907, the year before the Cobb law went into effect.

Restraining Order Secured by Victims Intended for Removal

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—Mayor McCarthy's wide-swinging ax struck the first knot in the timber of the municipal commissions he is trying to break up yesterday, when three members of the Board of Education appointed by former Mayor Taylor secured temporary restraining orders to prevent him from evicting them from office.

The orders were issued by Superior Judge Sewall on separate applications for injunctions made by Mary A. Kincaid, Thomas R. Bannerman and Henry Bayot. They are the initial legal impediments encountered by Mayor McCarthy in divorcing his administration from all official bodies not in sympathy with his policies.

The enjoining of McCarthy by the members of the Board of Education divided attention yesterday with the talk that followed Tom Dillon's representations about the fight permits of the Metropolitan Athletic Club and the bustle and activity that followed the mayor's announcement of the previous day that the Pan-Tan Goddess and other deities in the pantheon of the gamblers of Chinatown were not to be profaned by police raids when their votaries assembled for devotional exercises in the seclusion of Chinese clubs.

Army Physician Is Mme. Jora's Lover

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The man to whom Carl Jora, the Metropolitan Opera house tenor, has given up his wife, Frau Jora, is Dr. William Mederer, a military doctor and officer in the German reserve army. Herr Jora admitted this today, after learning that Dr. Mederer had admitted it.

"Yes, Dr. Mederer is the man of her choice," said Herr Jora. "I wish him all the happiness Frau Jora can give him." Frau Jora, with a 12-year-old daughter, is now on her way to Germany.

Petition Out for Pardon of Morse

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—It became known here today that the circulation of a petition asking the president to pardon Charles W. Morse, the New York banker, who is serving a fifteen-year sentence in the federal prison at Atlanta, Ga., was begun here yesterday.

Although the paper was first circulated late yesterday afternoon, several scores of signatures of prominent business men and a number of bankers have been attached to it.

President Wheeler Banquets Friends

BERLIN, Jan. 29.—President Benjamin H. Wheeler of the University of California, and Mrs. Wheeler gave a dinner of fifty-six covers this week at the Hotel de Rome, where they are staying. The only American guests were Ambassador and Mrs. Hill, General and Mrs. Woodford and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Roberts. Mrs. Hill left early to take her daughter to the Von Moltke hall where, with her friends, the Misses Munson and Welsh joined in formal court dances.

Police Capture Two Men, But Do Not Recover Stolen Gem

Captain W. A. Neville, capitalist and mining man of Rawhide, now staying at the St. Mark, accompanied by his wife, had an experience with the light fingered gentry yesterday afternoon that cost him the loss of a $700 diamond scarf pin and no little amount of excitement. The captain spent the morning in San Francisco, where he had transacted business at the mint, afterwards going to the Portola Hotel with his wife for luncheon. Leaving there they visited an office in Market street and, with J. McMillan, caught the 1:45 boat for the Alameda pier. Unknown to the party, they were followed by two men.

MEN FOLLOW THEM.
When the party arrived at the pier it was noticed that two suspicious looking characters were keeping an eye on their movements and that they intended to take the same train for the Fourteenth and Franklin street station. This they did, going to the farthest side of the train and boarding the same car at the front end.

In the crowded aisle the two parties came face to face, Mrs. Neville, in front and the Captain behind, carrying a heavy case of bullion in his hand while inside his coat was a $7,000 roll of bank notes. The ruffian, passing Mrs. Neville, who wore a $30,000 sunburst at her throat and a diamond studded watch on her bosom half concealed by her fur cloak, pressed close to the Captain and snatching the diamond from the scarf jumped from the car, followed almost immediately by McMillan and Neville who, discovering his loss, jumped after them.

BOTH ARE SEIZED.
One caught the "horseshoe" train, where he was apprehended a few minutes later and the other made his way to the men's waiting room, where the police found him and placed him under arrest.

"Had I possessed a gun," said the Captain, "I could have got them both. As it was I hesitated to drop the bullion case, but my cry of alarm aroused the policemen and they spotted the pair. When we heard the one from the train he quickly protested that he did not have the stone, saying, 'You can search me.' The thief of the train, however, was caught the train which was then moving out. I left him to chase the other, whom a brakeman pointed out as being the one having the stone."

GOING TO BAKERSFIELD.
The man who was arrested gave his name as Charles Wade and is believed by the police to be an ex-convict. He had no identification marks of fifty-six covers this week at the Hotel de Rome, where they are staying. The only American guests were Ambassador and Mrs. Hill, General and Mrs. Woodford and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Roberts. Mrs. Hill left early to take her daughter to the Von Moltke hall where, with her friends, the Misses Munson and Welsh joined in formal court dances.

Max Figman Marries Miss Lolita Robinson

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—Max Figman and Lolita Robinson were married today. The actor and his former leading lady ran away, almost eloped, to Redwood City yesterday, with the idea, Figman says, of preventing any publicity. But the story got out and the couple were fronted last night at the Savoy theater.

Figman admitted that he was the husband of the pretty actress who made her debut at the Alcazar in this city several years ago. And he added that in making Miss Robinson his wife he had taken a favorite from the stage, for Mrs. Figman will devote herself to domestic duties and leave the footlights forever.

The ceremony was performed by Judge Hanson of the San Mateo county seat.

SHADOWED BY WOMAN, WIFE ACCUSES DIBBLE

Charges Made in Cross-Complaint That Alleged Affinity Has Been Acting Spy

BRUTAL TREATMENT IN PUBLIC PLACE CITED

Club Leader Denies Assertions Made by Husband Regarding Their Child

Asserting that for months she has been shadowed by Mrs. Rose Stalder, Bacon, her husband's alleged affinity, and citing instances of extreme cruelty which, she says, reached a climax on August 24 of last year, when her spouse was arrested and placed in detention at the Harbor police station after striking her brutally in the face before a dozen bystanders in the Ferry Building, Mrs. Eleanor Dibble, club woman and member of the West Oakland Home Board of Charities, yesterday afternoon filed answer to a suit for divorce instituted by Frank G. Dibble on January 20.

KEPT A DIARY.

The complaint, which is submitted by Charles Hanson of San Francisco, attorney for Mrs. Dibble, is a lengthy document and, going back several years, gives in detail a record of Dibble's alleged misconduct culled from a diary kept by the wife, who says she was prompted to such action by her husband's frequent description of her.

"Women are my falling," Dibble is said to have pleaded in extenuation of these frequent excursions from his own fireside, and time after time, according to the wife, she was forced to take him back by his threats to "drag her name in the mire so her own relatives wouldn't speak to her on the street." In the event that she attempted action against him.

"When I married Mr. Dibble I knew nothing of his later developed penchant," declared Mrs. Dibble at her apartments at the Hotel St. Mark last night. According to the wife, she has been driven to refuge in the hostility by her husband's refusal to give her money with which to maintain their home at 532 Thirty-third street.

A DAY AT DIBBLE'S.

"For years, five or six at least, I have known of my husband's unfaithfulness, but time after time I have forgiven him because of his threats to ruin me and in the hope that he would reform. Just the day before he filed suit against me for divorce I, with two other witnesses, were able to ascertain positively that he spent the entire afternoon in a room alone at a resort on the beach, with Mrs. Bacon, who is a divorcee."

"That they have been constant companions for months I am also able to prove and even since I came here to the hotel to live he has had the temerity to bring the woman here, introducing her almost under my very nose as his future wife, and asserting loudly that as soon as he can rid himself of me they will be married. That he has paid her rent, furnished her clothes and bought her numberless trifles I know to be a positive fact and his allegations against me are trumped up with a view of gaining his freedom and humiliating me before the world."

Society Women in Big Labor Union

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Steps were taken today by prominent society women, who are also noted for their activity in woman's cause, to found a national organization of labor unions of which women are members. It was learned that some of the wealth of J. P. Morgan is to be contributed to the movement through the efforts of aid extended by his daughter, Miss Anne Morgan.

At the meeting today, at which the matter was discussed, Miss Morgan spoke enthusiastically of the social benefits which she believed would result to the women of the entire country. The conference was also attended by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor. It was held at the home of Miss Ida Tarbell, the "Joan of Arc of the Oil Trust Fight," as Mr. Roosevelt once spoke of her.

IN AN OFFICIAL NOTE SO TELLS REPUBLICAN STATE COMMITTEE

Says It Is for the Best Interests of Himself and Family

Cannot Afford to Spend Four Years in Office, but Longs for His Profession---Thanks All of His Friends

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—Governor James N. Gillett will not be a candidate for re-election. His definite and irrevocable determination to that effect was officially expressed yesterday in the following communication dispatched from the Governor's office in Sacramento to headquarters of the Republican State Central Committee, San Francisco Cal.—Dear Sir: I promised to inform the committee through you of any decision I might reach in reference to being a candidate for re-election. After carefully weighing the matter for some time I have finally decided not to be a candidate. It is for the best interests of myself and family that I should again resume the practice of my profession, and I cannot well afford to continue in the office of Governor for another period of four years.

Is Very Grateful

"I feel very grateful to my party for the many high honors conferred upon me and to my friends for their loyal support and kindly service which they have at all times given me, and it is exceedingly hard at this time to decline their most urgent request to become a candidate again.

"Many things which I desired to accomplish have become laws, notably the banking act, the insurance law, pure food bill, railroad rate bill, reciprocal demurrage act, employers' liability act, the training school for orphan children, etc. Three other improvements which are of great concern to our State and in which I have been and am intensely interested, viz: the improvement of the navigation of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers and the reclamation of thousands of acres of most fertile lands along their banks; a system of State highways connecting our several counties and the centers of population, and the making of San Francisco's harbor one of the best and cheapest in the world to take care of the great commerce which will come to our State, are well under way.

The last two will receive my most earnest support. I trust our party will endorse the work and use its best efforts to secure from the people a favorable decision.

"As I have already said, I have a deep feeling of gratitude for the high honors which the people of California have conferred upon me. I shall at all times be ready and willing to help advance every interest in our State, and to advocate those measures which will tend to develop and make it greater. Whosoever my party shall decide upon to be my successor will receive my earnest support and any assistance I may be able to give.

"Yours truly,

"J. N. GILLETT."

His Withdrawal Was Predicted

The Governor's decision to withdraw from the race has been predicted, for it had been generally understood that Gillett had yielded to pressure brought to bear upon the Republican State organization and despite the admitted opposition of Mrs. Gillett, was waiting only a favorable opportunity to officially make known his candidacy.

But just about the time stated the news was conveyed that the Governor had made up his mind not to run, and his secretary, E. C. Cooper, had so stated to Mayor Frank Mott of Oakland, at the same time intimating that it would be a good thing for the Republic.

Mayor Mott Now Leading Candidate for Governor

By his declaration to run again for Governor the letter of Governor Gillett to the Republican State Central Committee last night places Mayor Frank K. Mott of this city as the leading candidate for gubernatorial honors. Oakland's Mayor has all along refused to make any statements of his intentions so long as Governor Gillett was in the race.

It is understood that he would make the race in the contingency which has just now been reached.

The Mayor could not be found last night at his home or club.

Quality Meats

Arrangements are completed for the opening of our new market, 1493-1499 San Pablo avenue, Oakland.

With a reputation of always dealing with the public in a fair and impartial manner our business has grown to such an extent that we have decided in preference to enlarging our present quarters to open a new market and run it as we are known to have run our other market.

It is an easy matter to have a dealer tell you of the high quality of meat he handles, but another story to have him prove it. We tell you and prove it. We buy every ounce of our meat from government inspected whole-house butchers. The government brand of protection is placed upon the meat for your inspection, and with that grade of meat and the lowest possible prices you are assured of protection against the cheap unscrupulous meats so liable to be diseased.

Quality Meats

Just now, when the whole United States is in an uproar of dissatisfaction, especially Oakland and surrounding vicinities, over the high-handed methods of meat trusts and organizations playing into the hands of the meat trusts, there is at least one meat company who defies the actions of the combine, and that one fearless company is the Occidental Meat Co. (Inc.)

The Occidental Meat Co. is free from any organization or combine, free to buy from whom it pleases, free to conduct its business as it pleases—which will be done for the benefit of the people. There will be no dues or assessments to pay to the higher-ups, and no agreement to buy from any one wholesaler. This will be a plain business, run on plain American business principles.

CORPORATIONS FIGHT FOR SECRET STATEMENTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—President Taft will make the cause of the corporations of the country that are objecting to the public law in the corporation tax law the subject of a cabinet meeting next Tuesday.

John M. Glenn, secretary of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, got that statement from the President this morning. Whether the men who are trying to get the law repealed or else modified so as to keep their reports secret have made any progress toward the accomplishment of their purpose will not be known until after the meeting is held. "The cabinet meeting to talk it over is something," he says, "for when Glenn, Laven W. Soyars and other Chicagoans were here in December they could not get the least glimpse of encouragement. At the time, however, the representatives were standing to nothing less than the repeal of the whole law, now they are willing to compromise. If the government will only agree to keep their statements secret they will file their statements and will pay the required tax.

ADJUSTABLE SENTIMENTS.

"When citizens acclaim you as their choice for high position what do you do?" I abide in a patriotic spirit by the wisdom of the common people," answered Senator Sanghvi.

And when they arise in resentment of something you have said or done? "I maintain a superior indifference to the clamor of the thoughtless multitude,"—Washington Star

Americans Driven From Paris Homes Rush to Seek Refuge in Small Boats

BUILDINGS FALL; FIRE ADDS TO HORRORS

Panic Follows Announcement That Starving Beasts From Zoo Are at Large

DEAD BODIES CLOG CREVASES IN STREETS

Disease and Epidemic Feared and All Precautions Are Being Taken

Incensed by the Apaches, these picturesque criminals, taking advantage of the dark conditions of the city, have broken into numberless stores and residences. Emboldened by wine stolen from cafes and looted homes, they are continuing their quarrels and feuds while despair and death is rampant around them.

AMERICANS ALL SAFE.

The estimate of money damage is now $300,000,000. Already $1,500,000 has been offered in subscriptions by Americans and others.

The charitable spirit of the world was evidenced in the many offers of aid. None of the 50,000 Americans in the city are injured and the American students in the Latin quarter are all accounted for.

Among the Place de la Concorde, the Rue Royale and the Place de l'Opera, the greatest havoc was wrought. Magnificent buildings, typical of the finest works of architecture, are crumbling away.

Great stretches of the boulevards and avenues have caved in at points where the water mains and conduits exploded. Beautiful structures of peeling waters, leaving the building walls coated with thick yellow mud and slime. The windows are broken. Lawns, boulevards and parks are piled high with debris swept in by the water.

PUBLIC PRAYERS.

Public prayers which were offered up in all the churches today, giving thanks to God for the deliverance of the city from higher water, were continued through the night and there will be no recessions in some of the churches all day tomorrow.

A wave of panic swept the suburbs in the vicinity of Pont National, Pont Austerlitz and the Jardin des Plantes, when it was reported that the wild animals in the zoos had broken from their cages. These animals are nearly starved as the flood cut off all communication and the keepers were unable to get into the parks to carry food. The roars of the infuriated beasts could be heard for nearly a mile.

COMPARED TO SAN FRANCISCO.

Several financial men were gathered in the Hotel Ritz tonight discussing the appalling extent of the calamity. All agreed that estimates of damage made at this time would likely be too conservative. This disaster was compared to the San Francisco earthquake and Messina earthquake. In property damage the loss to Paris compares equally with either of the great disasters before mentioned; there has been less loss of life here fortunately.

One of the financiers, speaking of affairs from the standpoint of a banker, said:

WORLD-WIDE EFFECT.

"The destruction of so much of the world's wealth means the same thing as the San Francisco earthquake. Also it must not be forgotten that the California calamity followed on the heels of the Boer War and the Russian-Japanese war, which had already entailed enormous drains on the financial resources of the world. The Paris flood is to be far reaching in its effect. It may increase money rates in Europe because of the additional demands which will be made for money by French builders. French capital investments abroad will be called in. This will have an enormous effect upon the United States, as much French capital is invested in stocks and bonds of many corporations."

Continuing, the speaker said:

DANGER IN FIRE.

"This process will naturally result in a gradual decline of the exchange market in Paris until it reaches a point where gold will be freely imported. Because of our easy money conditions here and in view of the manner in which we have been of late made to liquidate Europe's debts, it is quite likely that America will be called upon to bear the bulk of the burden."

Our greatest danger now lies in fire. The city authorities are taking extraordinary precautions to prevent conflagration. A new division of the police, whose duty is to patrol the city, to keep a lookout for fire, or the possibility of fire, has been formed.

WORST DAY OF FLOOD.

This was the worst day of the flood. Tomorrow will be as bad. The city is passing through the crisis of 300 years and every danger that could confront a nation hovers over the ravaged city.

The funeral department predicts that the crisis has been passed. Among the streets which were barred off as unsafe this afternoon was the boulevard Des Capucines, near the Bois de Boulogne. It is full of holes and cracks. Trees are uprooted. Lamp posts have careened to alarming angles. Torrents sweep in from intersecting thoroughfares, causing it to look like a river at places.

BUILDINGS SINK.

The panic became general at times, although it is somewhat allayed in daylight, was intensified tonight by the roars of falling buildings. Some of the structures along the Gare street have sunk upon their foundations and are caving at dangerous angles. In the populous quarter around the Gare street Lazare a great lagoon still stands.

There are no lights and the noise of rushing waters and crumbling buildings is punctuated by scattered pistol shots where the police have caught Apaches at their looting or are driving criminals out of the flooded sections in fear that they may start a fire.

LIVE IN CEMETERY.

A gruesome feature of the calamity is the temporary city built in the famous cemetery of Mont Martre, the historic point in Paris. Men, women and children are living there in tents, suffering intensely from lack of food and clothing. Since the rain ceased falling the weather has been getting colder and the wind blew from the east today. Husband and wife separated from their wives and children have lost their parents. The ill are exposed to the ravages of the elements, for many of the hospitals have either under water and others are overcrowded.

STREETS HONEYCOMBED.

There is no other city in the world so catcombed by sewers, secret passages and great subterranean cellars as Paris.

The sewers are from ten to twenty feet in diameter. Every building, principal streets are honeycombed with subways. The Apaches, in the more squalid sections, have dug out dens after the manner of Chinese. The great water mains and gas mains are cracked in places and there is a rushing torrent eating out the shell of the streets, serious damage would result to the buildings along these streets.

Nearly 1,000 miles of sewers was flooded today. In certain portions of the heights the water backed up in sewers, flooding cellars.

There were varying reports of the height of the flood. Figures ranged from 30 feet 11 inches to 40 feet 6 inches.

Special kiosks were erected at various points today when it was seen that the crest of the flood had apparently been reached. Vendors of picture post cards depicting scenes of the flood occupied the kiosks, selling their wares. There were some who rejoiced in the most secular way possible over the beginning of the end. These celebrants frequented the wine shops tonight and sang and danced to their hearts' content.

BODIES ALONG CREVASES.

The police whose duties carry them into the wake of the receding waters report that the deaths may be over a hundred. Scores of dead bodies have been found clogged in crevases. Corpses are lodged against the arches of the Seine bridges. Temporary morgues have been built, but the majority of the dead are being buried without the formality of identification. With pestilence, famine and other forms of nature's wrath staring Paris in the face, precautions have to be taken; there is no time for exercise of the finer faculties.

OFFER BIG WAGES.

The city is offering double wages to men who will work with the police. Small armies of men are now engaged in cleaning the streets where such work can be done. Working by the light of lanterns with shovels and brooms and hydraulic cleaners, went on tonight to unblock the waters of the lake about the great cathedral of Notre Dame and the Isle de la Cite.

Receding likewise some of the higher sections of the Bois de Boulogne and the Grand Palais have begun to peep their mud-crowded heads above the face of the waters.

Boats were necessary to get to the Chamber of Deputies today.

Many restaurants along the Rue de la Paix and the Rue Ste. Honoré and Rue Royal will be compelled to remain closed for several days yet. The riverside fringe of the Champs Elysees is still under water.

The building of the Equitable Life Assurance Company, built from American money and owned by the American company, is flooded in basement and cellars. The streets are filling with men and women disappearing in the crevices in the face of the food became most menacing today. Frantic efforts were made to run trains from Lyons but the tracks of the Paris, Lyons and Mediterranean roads were washed out.

By VANCE THOMPSON.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—American Ambassador Bacon and family, who were forced to move from their residence in the Rue Francoisise by the flood, have taken quarters at the Hotel Mercedes, near the Arc de Triumphe. This is a mere indication of what happened to many prominent Americans.

When seen this afternoon, Bacon said: "My small troubles are of no account in the face of the terrible disaster that has fallen upon Paris. Of course, I was inconvenienced, but that is nothing. All my thoughts are with the unhappy poor of Paris." The ambassador's eyes were full of tears as he spoke. Indeed, when he made a speech this afternoon in the U. S. Ambassador Bacon, Who was Driven From His Paris Home by Floods.

Chamber of Commerce, he broke down and sobbed interrupted his remarks.

He said this afternoon that he had received cables from Americans anxious about their friends in Paris telling him to investigate their situation and give them money if necessary. He is fulfilling all requests. As yet he has received no appeals from the Latin Quarter, where the American students, many of them mere boys and girls, reside. The ambassador expects that the most serious help for Americans in Paris will be needed there. In the other flooded districts reside many rich Americans who can take care of themselves.

Among the Americans who moved today are Baroness Graffenhof, formerly Mrs. Hamilton of New York, who was flooded out of her magnificent home in the Rue Elvise. She, with her daughter Gertrude and son, went to the highlands of St. Germain. Mrs. Sanford Hoffman of New York, who lived in the same quarter, was flooded out and took her family to Brussels. Mrs. Charles Brinkley of Lenox, who is here superintending the education of her children at a convent, this morning took them to Brussels, the school being inundated.

Mrs. Archibald Kennedy Mackay of New York was driven out of her apartment at No. 7 Place Palais de Bourbon and has gone to the Hotel Majestic. She visits her flooded apartment daily in a boat, hoping to save the pictures and rare furniture.

One of the most extraordinary cases of action taken by the wife of Major Frederick H. Molan, who is on duty at his home at No. 51 Avenue Montaigne until her husband's return by boat from Potsdam. He went to America with the body of the late Colonel Dodge.

Although the lower portions of the house are flooded and there is no electricity or gas, she is remaining, in order that her husband may find her at home when he returns.

Mrs. W. H. Gohard, mother of Frederick Gohard, the New York chairman, has moved to the Hotel Majestic with her daughter.

RESCUED FROM HOTEL.

Mrs. Key, wife of Commander Key, U. S. N., was rescued from the Hotel Marlborough by United States Naval Attaché Chapman, who sent her to Brussels for safety.

Frederick Lynwood, the well known society man of Boston, is isolated in his apartment in the Hotel Grenelle and is getting provisions by boat.

PRICES DOUBLED.

Coal has risen 25 per cent and the price of meat and bread have doubled. All lights are out and it is impossible to buy petroleum, and candles are at double prices. Taxicabs and automobiles make their own prices, the cheapest being four times the regular fare, which is added to by the long detours it is necessary to make.

Among the Americans who left tonight were Mrs. M. L. Oliver of New York, Mrs. Charles A. Dudley and Miss Helen Mackay of Cleveland, H. D. Weiss, Mr. and Mrs. Miller Collier of New York. Most of them went to Brussels. Minister of Public Works Miller and tonight issued a statement saying that 80,000 persons are starving and homeless in the environs of Paris.

DREAD AND APPREHENSION.

Meanwhile what is regarded with general dread and apprehension by the American colony, is that the entire central part of Paris is being deserted. The big hotels are empty, fast food and the guests going north to Belgium and Germany. The floods were at Bordeaux and along the Riviera make people fear the southern shore. Only eggs and cold meat are being served in the hotels in the center of Paris. The restaurants and kitchens are flooded. In the basement of one hotel 15,000 francs worth of delicate machinery was ruined by water. The Grand Cafe La Rue, Durand Maxim's, in the environs of Paris.

HALLEY'S COMET IS PENDULUM OF HISTORY

Tail of Celestial Tramp Will Envelop the Earth in the Month of May

MAKES APPEARANCE
EVERY SEVENTY YEARS

Great Events Are Coincident
With Return of This Remarkable Traveler

Coincident with great events happening in the past with the appearance of Halley's Comet, according to Professor R. Tracy Crawford, assistant director of the University of California Observatory, this year's return has been perfected and the North Pole has been discovered. The comet, which has appeared each seventy years or thereabouts for as long as history has been recorded, has played a part in the history of the world. It appeared at the time of some famous events which have gone down in history, and this year the comet is expected to appear at the time of the greatest event in the history of the world, the return of the comet.

LECTURES ON THE COMET.
Professor Crawford spoke on the comet before the Astronomical Society of the Pacific last evening in the Chamber of Commerce. The hall being so full that the public at this time in the phenomenon Professor Crawford, who has made a special study of the comets known to astronomy, gave a complete account of the comet and its history. He also gave a talk with pictures of the comet, including several spectroscopic views.

He said the appearance of Halley's comet has been traced back to the year 87 B. C. He said that during the last of seventy-five to seventy-six years ago that the comet was seen in appearance in the year 1909 or 1910. He said the variation was allowed for the interference of the planets Mars and Saturn. The accuracy of the calculations was shown, the speaker said, by the fact that the reappearance of the comet was discovered in England in 1909, by Wolf of Heidelberg and within four degrees of the identical spot computed for it. Continuing, the professor said:

WILL APPROACH SUN
At present it seems that the comet will make its nearest approach to the sun on the 14th of April, at a distance of about one-half of that from the sun to the earth, or about 28,000,000 miles. Its nearest approach to the earth will be on the 18th of May, at which time it will be within 10,000,000 miles of us, closer than any other known comet in the universe with the single exception of the moon.

WILL TRANSIT SUN.
According to the present data there is a strong probability that the comet will witness a most unusual phenomenon on the 18th day of May, at which time the comet will be on the line joining the earth and the sun so that the comet will be seen projected upon the sun's surface, giving it what is termed a transit of the sun.

As the tail is directed away from the sun it will, at that time, envelop the earth. From this time on, nothing will be seen. Such a thing has happened before, although we knew nothing about it until it was all over, and computation revealed the phenomenon.

VISIBLE IN APRIL.
The comet has been reported as visible in the clear sky of the Arizona highlands. It is becoming brighter and brighter every day, so that we may all hope to see it soon with the naked eye. At the beginning of March it was about three hours after the sun. About the middle of that month it will be lost to view in the sun's brilliant light until the end of April when it will be seen before sunrise. Toward the end of May it will again be in the evening sky when it will probably be very brilliant, and will then fade away rapidly.

GREAT EVENTS.
In looking over events that have transpired at the time of the appearance of this comet it may be looked upon almost as a huge pendulum of history, ticking off the events of the past, as it were, equal in length to the path of the comet. There is such a remarkable coincidence between the time of its return and important events in history as to give very strong grounds for supposing.

It was supposed for a time that the Star of Bethlehem was this same comet, but calculations show that the appearance of this time must have been about eight years too soon to have been identified with that object.

EVENTS IN HISTORY.
Passing from this to the important events in history occurring at the time of the comet's reappearance, Professor Crawford enumerated the following:
87 B. C.—Terrible Marian persecution in Rome.
100—Mohammedanism checked by Persians.
107—First expedition of Norsemen up the Rhine.
112—Danes wrested Normandy from Charles the Simple.
118—Invasion of the Vikings into England.
1066—Invasion of William the Conqueror.
1378—Year of Great Schism, two rival popes, Urban VI and Clement VII.
1606—Checking Mohammedan invasion on the east.
1581—Rapture between Henry VIII and the Pope over the divorce of Catherine of Aragon.
BECOMES SIGN OF GOOD.
This marked the end of the disasters.

FEMALE MEDICS DUEL OVER LOVER

Being 'Advanced Women' They Observe Standards of Male
Chivalry

(By Count Epberg.)
BERLIN, Jan. 29.—A duel between female medical students has occurred at Presburg, on the Sicilian frontier. Olga Metzgeroff and Hana Metnitski quarreled over their common love for a dashing young medical student named Brightner, who made love to both, engaging himself to neither. The rivalry caused hatred between the girls and blows were exchanged.

CHALLENGE LIKE MEN.
Being "advanced women," they hold themselves by the standards of male chivalry. Consequently the Hana Metnitski, who was the recipient of the first blow in the hand-to-hand fight, sent two other female students as her seconds to Olga Metzgeroff, who also obtained two. The four seconds arranged that the duel should be fought on German territory, so as to avoid the Austrian police.

The conditions were that pistol shots at 15 paces should be exchanged until one of the combatants was disabled. Three days were spent in practicing pistol shooting and then the dueling party crossed the frontier at sunrise and proceeded to a spot in a forest. The combatants took their positions and one of the seconds gave the signal.

FIRST SHOT DRAWS BLOOD.
The duellists exchanged four shots before either was hit. At the fifth shot the Metzgeroff girl received a wound in the left shoulder and fell fainting and bleeding profusely in the snow. Her wound was bandaged and she was conveyed back to Austria. Her recovery is certain. The victorious combatant received an enthusiastic ovation from her fellow students.

Sea Captain Is Drunk When Ship Is Wrecked

SINGAPORE, Jan. 29.—An extraordinary case on shipboard has been disclosed by an inquest just held here. The court set to inquire into the circumstances in which the British ship King George was lost in Sunda Strait on November 24th.

It was shown that the captain was drunk when the ship struck. He and a seaman named Bissard died on November 24th from the effects of drinking rum and whiskey, with Florida water to finish with.

TEACH "FIRST AID."
The Sinaloa schools of Brooklyn have organized a system of teaching their members first aid to the injured. After a three months' course of instruction the scholars will be given an examination and all who pass will receive a diploma from the National Red Cross Society, with President Taft's signature affixed.

and from now on it is a harbinger of good.
1606—Founding of Jamestown.
1682—La Salle traverses the Mississippi valley.
1835—Only minor event.
1910—North pole discovered, airships perfected, general prosperity.

WHERE DOES THE LINE
OF SOCIAL DEMARKA-
TION EXTEND?

AN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—Where does the line of social demarkation extend as between the sports and achievements of earth and those of the air? Is an aviator really one of the higher-ups? We have just said goodbye to Monsieur Louis Paulhan. We have courted him. We have feasted him. We have received him in our clubs. We have written much and spoken more in his praise. That is because Monsieur Paulhan is a successful aviator.

Now, we do not interview, feast, praise, entertain the most skillful of chauffeurs. We have never thrown our arms around the most daring tight-rope walker that has visited our shores.

But before Monsieur Louis Paulhan became a professional aviator he was a professional chauffeur and a professional tight-rope walker. If we would not have made much of him as a chauffeur or as a disciple of Blondin, why should we take him up socially when he becomes an aviator? Surely his change of profession for money-making did not change him as a man. It dowered him with no superior education. It gave him no sudden culture.

In a few years aviators will be quite as numerous as chauffeurs—far more so than tight-rope walkers. And then should Monsieur Paulhan visit San Francisco will it be embarrassing to refuse him cards to the clubs and homes into which he was so gleefully invited during his recent visit? Surely we are a queer people in the way we fix our line of social distinction.

The Man With the Opera Glasses

There was one shrewd chap who turned a neat trick at the aviation meet—the man with the opera glasses. He secured the concession to rent glasses and paid his money each morning before he opened business. His address was given as No. 4 Market street.

His wares were well patronized. His method was to charge $1 for the rent of a pair of glasses. From each patron he accepted a deposit of $5 as a guarantee that the glasses would be returned. All went well the first two days.

On the third day the opera glass man was on hand as usual and paid his concession fee. He set up his stand and did a thriving business. Many patrons paid him a dollar and deposited $5 more as security.

When these people went to return the glasses and reclaim their five-dollar pieces—lo, the fellow was gone. His place knew him no more. Each patron found himself loaded up with a pair of glasses worth about $1.50 and will sigh in vain forever for the return of the $5.

A Detective Who Detected

In the police department shake-up now going on there has come into notice a detective who once made one of the most unusual reports ever sent to a superior officer.

A skeleton had been found under a drug store in the Latin quarter and the detective was sent out to make an investigation and seek for clues as to some hidden crime. In due course he returned and made a report as follows:

"In the matter of the skeleton found at the drug store, I have to report that in all probability it was used by a doctor who formerly had offices over the store. I have carefully questioned Botica Espagnol and Farmacia Italiana, two of the proprietors, but in order that there may be no possibility of mistake I will return this evening and question the third proprietor, Parle Francaise."

The Function of the Waiter

At the recent Royal Arch banquet at the St. Francis—whichever, by the way, was a very notable affair for attendance and menu—our new Supervisors were very much in evidence. Next to the Mayor they were the chief attraction to the liquor men who made up the majority of the throng.

It began to be noticed that these city fathers had numerous waiters stationed behind them—one for each Supervisor. The attention of these servitors soon attracted attention and remarks began to spread and questions were asked.

"Why do the Supervisors need a waiter apiece?" asked one of the foremost saloon men there.

"Because the waiter has to tell the Supervisor which fork to use with each course," came a prompt reply.

The Man to Succeed Flint

When the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce men came to San Francisco this week they brought at their head the man they are grooming to succeed Frank Flint as United States Senator. Flint says he can't afford the place. He is not rich and he feels he is wasting the best years of his life for money-getting without laying up anything for the future. In fact, he feels he is going backward, as his law practice is going to pieces while he toils in Washington.

THE KNAVE

Of course the south wants a Senator, and Joseph Scott, president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, is being groomed for the place. He is a lawyer who has not held office except as head of a non-partisan school board, which place he now occupies, but he always has taken a hand in public questions.

Scott has a good presence and made a very good speech at the St. Francis banquet. In fact, when it came to speech-making the southerners put it all over the northerners at that feast; where, by the way, the only drawback was the cheap cigars with which the southern guests were served after the feasting.

In the southern company was another man who expects to cut some ice in politics this campaign. That man was Lee Gates, who intends to contest with Congressman Jim McLachlan for the honor of representing the Seventh district at Washington. Gates has the backing of the Reformers and the Lincoln-Roosevelt League, who recently carried the city election.

McNab's Tongue Again

It has been said of Gavin McNab that he would rather perpetrate a successful epigram than win an election. Surely some of his remarks have a bite to them that do not tend to bring the Scot any friends. But for all of that he holds his way and it is predicted that before long he will have a bigger swing in the present city government than anybody else.

However, he has been letting go another of those epigrams and it is going the rounds. The story has it that a bustling book agent invaded Gavin's office, began getting out a book and said:

"Mr. McNab, I want to sell you the most interesting book of the century—most interesting to a student of history like yourself."

"What is it about?"

"The lost tribes of Israel!"

"No, sir! No, sir! There are no lost tribes of Israel. They were all here on our last election day and voted for McCarthy!"

What Is an Amateur?

Our new Supervisors have disregarded a city ordinance and have thrown open the doors again for all sorts of sluggers and plug-uglies to masquerade as amateur boxers. For a long time these gentry went from one "club" to another and fought for money. Still they called themselves amateurs and the "clubs," that were run solely for the profit of a few men, were given permits to hold "amateur" fights.

The Olympic Club and other true amateur organizations fought these fake clubs and fake amateurs and finally got an ordinance passed that no clubs or boxers would be recognized as amateurs until their standing had been passed upon by the duly constituted authorities in amateur athletics.

Under this ordinance amateur sport took on a far cleaner face than it had ever had before. But now our new Supervisors have put everything back in the old way, or worse. Right in the face of that ordinance they have issued permits for "amateur" fights to four "clubs" that are nothing more nor less than political clubs—"piece clubs," we used to call them.

Of course, the new board can repeal that salutary ordinance any time it musters votes enough, but the members couldn't wait to do that, they were in such a hurry to favor those political clubs. So now the boxing game is going to be in a worse condition than ever before, and, just as the nickel-in-the-slot game worked its own undoing, I expect the "fight" game will get so rotten that a Legislature will come along and knock it out altogether.

I wonder what action the Olympic Club will take on Supervisor Johnny Herget, a member of that body, but who was to the front in this bad business about "amateur clubs."

Magnificent New Homes

Ask any of the expert workmen employed on the places and they will tell you an interesting story about the new country home the William H. Crockers are building near Burlingame and the one Mrs. Winchester is spending a lot of money on near the town of Santa Clara. Mrs. Winchester is the widow of one of the original members of the firm of Main & Winchester of this city. Workmen have been employed on the Winchester country place for over ten years and it is not yet finished. Thousands of dollars have been expended in tearing down and rebuilding various parts of the structure. Nothing seems to satisfy the wealthy woman and there is no telling how long she will continue to carry out her building whims and fancies. The workmen are not complaining. They are willing to stay there any old length of time, but marvel at the cost in money to maintain such a persistent change of mind. The Crocker country mansion was commenced three years ago and considerable of the hardwood and other material has been brought from Europe. Wanting everything just so and having the wherewithal to build according to their good taste, the Crockers have made many changes and continue doing so. On this account the workmen employed on the mansion expect to be there a long time to come. It is told that after several rooms had been finished with the European material the Crockers became dissatisfied. Immediately everything was torn up, packed and shipped back to Paris to be exchanged for other material.

Paid Money to Jilted Lover

Here is an interesting story about Dr. E. B. Stein, the young and able doctor of Vienna who wanted to marry a San Francisco girl. Several months ago he was engaged to be married to Miss Florence Breckinridge, whose mother is the wife of Frederick Sharon of the Palace Hotel Company and Sharon estate. Miss Breckinridge jilted him and shortly afterward married Thomas Hesketh of England, the eldest son of Sir Thomas Hesketh. The latter's wife was formerly Flora Sharon of this city, the sister of Frederick Sharon. After his fiancée had broken the engagement it was announced that Dr. Stein had engaged attorneys to sue the beautiful and rich young woman for breach of promise. It was afterwards denied that the Austrian professional man had ever entertained such a sordid intention. Now the story is being whispered among the friends of the Sharons here and in Paris that Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Sharon did pay the doctor some money and thought it proper to do so. They did not do so to ward off a suit. Quite the contrary. As the tale runs, Dr. Stein had made purchases, which, when his bride-to-be deserted him, he had no use for. It was to reimburse him for these outlays, it is alleged, the money was paid. The amount involved is not mentioned.

Shaking Dice for Money

Harry T. Lally has had his high opinion of himself as a dice-shaker severely jolted during the past week or two. Lally formerly was the San Francisco agent of Crane & Co. of Chicago at $25,000 a year. He now has an iron and steel agency of his own. He is considered a success in business. In after hours he is a genial bohemian whose pet diversion is shaking dice. Several nights in succession recently he engaged in combat with the bones a number of friends and acquaintances at the Palace and one or two of the clubs. The play was sometimes $25 a throw and at other times $50. At the latter figure a mild-mannered fellow by the name of Lynch took $700 of the Lally coin. It was done so easily that the steel agent has not yet recovered from the shock to his pride and purse. A night or two later, it is said, he lost even a larger sum at one of the clubs. Since then it is whispered he is practicing on the quiet for a return match with the gay fellows who are spending his money and laughing at him.

Gambling and the French Restaurants

By the way, there is a lot of gambling for big money at the large hotels and in the swell clubs. It is either in the form of poker or dice. This manner of spending coin and the remarkable financial success of the eight or ten French restaurants in the city indicate with unerring certainty an abundance of money about town and that in several distinct phases of life San Francisco is once again into her own. An authority on the subject said yesterday that these eight or ten French restaurants represent an investment of $2,500,000 and are averaging a net annual profit of 15 per cent. This profit is largely due to the high prices charged for meals served in the upper rooms of these places. It is estimated that the daily patronage of these French dining places averages a total of 6000. This includes those who lunch and dine in the main dining-room on the ground floor. So well may those who like this feature of local life sing again to the refrain of the "Marseillaise" as they were wont to do before the fire—

"Marchand's, Marchand's,
The Maison Riche,
The Poodle Dog,
The Pup."

Mrs. Duxie Dunne After Deane

Mrs. Duxie Rosenbaum Rodgers Dunne continues to act the role of nemesis against "Handsome Dan" Deane. The latter is a well-known hotel clerk of New York who came here after the fire to manage the Hotel Savoy on Van Ness avenue for J. H. Dunne of New Haven. Later he was chief clerk of the Hotel Stewart on Geary street and subsequently managed a saloon on Powell street. Now he is back in New York as chief clerk of the Astor Hotel.

Mrs. Duxie Dunne was there recently and informed the owner and manager, of the house that Deane had a police record in San Francisco. The owner and manager wrote to Chief of Police Cook about Deane's record and that of Mrs. Duxie also. Word has been sent back that Deane's record in this city was straight; also that of the woman, save for a couple of appearances in the Police Court. One of these cases was when she smashed a mirror in Deane's saloon on Powell street and was arrested. Mrs. Duxie's first husband, Duxie Rosenbaum, left her a half-million dollar estate. They were a queerly mated couple; he a Jew and successful merchant; she an Irish working girl, a head taller than he. They lived at the Palace for several years about ten years ago. She divorced her second husband, Rodgers, after he had gotten away with $28,000 of her fortune. She said at the time she was lucky to get rid of him so cheaply. Dunne deserted a wealthy sweetheart in the East to come to San Francisco. He married Mrs. Duxie and after living with her a little over a year left her to return to his former love in the East. How much, if any, of Mrs. Duxie's fortune he got away with is not known. She believes Deane had a hand in persuading Dunne to return to his former love. That is why she is so vindictive against him.

Shortly after Dunne's desertion of her she followed him East, caught him at Atlantic City in the company of his old inamorata and fought with the latter. She then filed a suit against the latter for alienating the affections of her husband. What the outcome of her last matrimonial venture will be remains to be seen.

Lord Clifton a Good Fellow

We are to have Lord Talbot Clifton pay us a visit once more in the late spring according to what some of his Burlingame friends are saying. This titled, wealthy, sport-infatuated Britisher was the sensation of the Blingum coterie several years before the fire. He spent thousands of dollars for polo ponies, a coach and four and blooded stock and vehicles galore. As a polo player and a whip he was at the top. Devoted to his friends, he was unsparing with his enemies. He conceived a great liking for "White Hat" McCarthy and on one occasion at the bar at the Burlingame Club called the late Colonel Jack Chinn of Kentucky a liar for something he had said about McCarthy. Only pronounced interference by influential clubmen prevented the Englishman and Kentucky fighter from clashing. His Lordship came to California, he said, to get rid of London newspaper notoriety. He finally said San Francisco newspaper notoriety was even worse and returned home. When he left he gave his friend McCarthy $12,000 worth of horses, vehicles and equipment he had bought during his stay here. He was extremely charitable to the deserving but gave his money quietly. On one occasion he visited a German beer hall with a friend. A woman singer on the little stage of the resort impressed him with her evident refinement. He went the next night and requested his friend to ask the proprietor if they could talk to the singer. He consented. They saw her behind the scenes and when asked why she was employed in such a place, even though it had an air of respectability about it, replied:

"If you will wait until 1 o'clock I will not only tell you why but show you why I sing here every night from 8 to 1 o'clock for a dollar."

After 1 o'clock she conducted them to a basement room on a little street near the United States Branch Mint on Fifth street and showed them two little children asleep in bed. The room was neatly furnished and an old woman in the next room attended the babies if they cried while the mother was away earning her dollar. She was a Scotch woman who had come out to California with her husband. He lost his little pile of money on a farm. Coming to this city the husband has suddenly died and left her and the two babies penniless. The next day Lord Clifton found from the British consular office that the woman's story was true and that she was a deserving person. That afternoon the brave struggling woman was surprised to receive a visit from the same two men she had met the night before. Clifton handed her a check for $2500 and then quickly withdrew with his friend, the woman crying a heartfelt of thanks after them. She now has a little notion store in the Mission and is sending her two children to the public schools.

Stout Men in the Ball Room

A Washington, D. C., dispatch represents Mrs. Pearce Horn, the beautiful daughter of General A. P. Hill, as being surprised that so stout a man as President Taft could be the ideal dancer she found him to be. Mrs. Horn danced with the President a few nights ago at the Southern Relief Corps ball. Unlike Mrs. Horn, there are plenty of young women in San Francisco society who know from having had them as partners that lots of men of pronounced avoirdupois, or embonpoint if you will, are very apt followers of Terpsichore. Is not our own Ned Greenway's renown in this respect far-flung across the continent? And what about Colonel J. C. Kirkpatrick and his bosom friend, M. P. Michael, the attorney who tips the scales at 410 less two pounds? They trip the light fantastic, so to speak once and awhile, though they may be a little short-winded at times, as Mrs. Horn avers she found was the case with the

Natural History and Prohibition

A clerical advocate of prohibition informed a Washington audience that one drink of a certain kind of whisky would make a jackrabbit rear up on its hind legs and spit in a bulldog's face. Whereupon a Texas editor remarks that jackrabbits and bulldogs never meet face to face; when they are seen traveling the same road they are always observed going in the same direction, the rabbit considerably in the lead and increasing it at every jump. However, the Lone Star journalist manifests a mild curiosity regarding the clergyman's familiarity with the qualities of the whisky in question and its effects on jackrabbits.

"Has our reverend friend seen a jackrabbit drink this particular brand of bug juice?" he plaintively inquires; "and did he ever see one spit in a bulldog's face? We are anxious to know," he continues, "how the good man obtained his information, because we desire to train a jackrabbit to bid defiance to a bulldog kept by a neighbor who is considerably bigger than we are and not at all backward about hurting our feelings or even our person. That dog is so mean that he has churlishly refused to cat sandwiches seasoned with strychnine with which we have tried repeatedly to win his friendship, preferring to chew the seat of our trousers and the calves of our legs, and has eaten up every dog that we have quickly encouraged to meet him. We would give fifty dollars to see him chewed up by a jackrabbit. The sight would give us unbounded pleasure and enable us to win a flour barrel full of greenbacks. The Washington preacher can do us a personal favor and secure a large cash contribution for his church by enlightening us how a jackrabbit can be trained on a diet of corn whisky to face and fight bulldogs."

The Texas editor will sigh in vain. The good cleric was in all probability exercising the license of his calling when he said what a rabbit would do under the influence of liquor. He is not a rabbit, and it is to be presumed that he never took a drink of whisky. We are afraid that the good man was merely talking through his hat, and that our Texas contemporary will have to mitigate his neighbor's bulldog in some other way.

The Cartoonist in Politics.

For the second time in British elections the cartoonist has been a powerful political factor. In the campaign of 1906 "the Chinese slavery" and "dear loaf" cartoons so influenced the public mind that the Liberal government was returned to power with a majority behind it in the House of Commons, the like of which no preceding ministry had ever enjoyed. The Conservative-Unionists had been caught napping and were taken by surprise. The influence of the telling cartoon, could not be overcome. The cartoon was more eloquent than brilliancy of speech. It arrested the eye at a glance, conveyed the lesson instantly and carried conviction with it. No political agency was ever used in that country which was so effective. It was an impressive lesson to the Conservative-Unionists.

The recent elections proved that the lesson in political methods taught them four years ago had been well-learned. The Liberals sought to repeat their former success with the bill poster cartoon; but the Conservative-Unionists, representing the three "ps"—peers, parsons and publicans—with the most money to spend, plastered the billboards everywhere throughout the United Kingdom with the products of the skilled cartoonist and fairly eclipsed their opponents.

Since the days of Thomas Nast, the cartoon has been a powerful political agent in American politics. Nast's cartoons of Boss Tweed in "Harper's Weekly" brought that dollar marked arch-bodder to grief. Since then W. A. Rogers, Homer Davenport, F. Opper, McCutcheon and a host of minor cartoonists have been powerful agents in turning the tide in every presidential contest in the United States. It is strange that the British people were so slow in appreciating the value of the cartoon, particularly when it is remembered that John Leech made the political cartoon the principal feature in London Punch long before Nast applied it to the overthrow of Boss Tweed and the infamous ring of boddlers he had created and controlled in the eastern metropolis. Phil May followed in Leech's footsteps and still "Punch" had a monopoly of the business. But the campaign of 1906 opened a new field for the cartoonist in the newspapers of the kingdom and "Punch" lost its monopoly, and in this campaign the budget cartoons have been wonderfully clever and so numerous and effective that they have overshadowed in influence and results all previous efforts in the same direction on either side of the Atlantic.

If there are any evils associated with the eastern boycott against the high prices of rice, butter, eggs and milk, California may be said to have so far escaped them.

Congressman Douglas of Ohio complains that the government spends too much money on its military establishment and not enough on agriculture. The Buckeye statesman seems to have got things turned round. It has always been a part of the farmer's duty to support the soldier. It is the business of agriculture to furnish the rations and pay the taxes that maintain armies. Soldiers do not raise crops and pay taxes—they have to be paid and fed at somebody else's expense, and that somebody is the farmer. That Ohio man needs a little instruction in elementary political economy.

France's Great Calamity.

The whole civilized world cannot fail to commiserate and sympathize with Paris over the distressful experiences that beautiful city is passing through at the present time as the result of an unprecedented flood created by a rainstorm more prolonged and violent than any on record. The major part of the city and large area of suburban territory has been inundated by the river Seine and its tributaries overflowing their banks. Indeed, the greater part of France is, according to telegraphic accounts, flooded by the overflow of the raging torrents draining the watersheds.

Paris is in the grip of a foe against whose power it was never suspected it would have to contend. The sub-surface sanitary and transportation improvements made at fabulous cost to increase the comforts and improve the health of its inhabitants have suddenly developed into forces of self-destruction and every human agency which has been brought into play has been powerless to avert disaster. The railway subways and the magnificent system of sewers have yielded to the enormous pressure of the flood waters; street pavements have been blown up, buildings undermined so as to cause them to collapse, all railway traffic stopped and the most beautiful city in the world has been converted into a scene of ruin and desolation.

Paris is honeycombed below the surface by its railway subways; its immense sewers which carry its water and gas mains, its telegraph and telephone lines and underground tramways, as well as the house drainage, and by the miles of catacombs or ancient quarries in which the bones of the dead of centuries untold exhumed from abandoned cemeteries have been stored. These catacombs have been numbered hitherto among the most interesting and attractive of the show places of the French capital. They cover a large area of the city on the south side of the Seine. Their roofs are artificially supported to prevent subsidence, but, with all other underground workings in the great city the flood is causing them to collapse and the land on which the buildings above ground have been built is subsiding and the buildings themselves are crumbling like houses of cards.

The world's sympathy toward France in its great affliction is being shown by the promptness with which it is coming to its relief. The French people have been generous with succor and sympathy for other nations when overtaken by great calamities and they have the strongest possible claim now upon all civilized peoples to come to their relief.

A consolidation of the cities on the eastern shore of the bay is the first step toward a consolidated city and county government. It is also the most expeditious road to that desired end. Another argument in its favor is that it will facilitate consolidation with San Francisco if that should be deemed advisable in the future. By uniting under a single municipal organization Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda and the smaller contiguous towns will be able to better control their destiny and foster development along broad and harmonious lines. We are growing together in spite of parochial divisions, and material activities and necessities are sweeping over lines of political demarcation which serve now mainly to hamper progress and swell the expense of local government.

When the shoe manufacturers of New England asked for the removal of the duty on hides, saying it would reduce the price of footwear to the consumers, THE TRIBUNE questioned their sincerity—the sincerity of the protected manufacturer who asks for free trade in raw materials as a benevolence to his customers is always open to question. In this instance the doubts we expressed when the tariff law was being framed have been speedily verified. The removal of the duty on hides has been followed by an advance in the price of shoes. All the leading shoe manufacturers of the country have joined in this advance, showing it to be by concert and understanding. Thus instead of the lower prices promised we have higher prices. This is worse than the attempt of the railroads to hog all the increase in the tariff on lemons.

The two Burns sleuths who "guarded" Big Jim Gallagher for four days without finding that he had abandoned his house and departed the city say they were employed only to guard Gallagher's person and home, not to interfere with his movements. The vigilance of a guardianship that remains for days in ignorance of the ward's whereabouts is open to question. The watchful care for Gallagher's safety appears to have exercised itself chiefly by calling up once a day on the telephone to inquire if Big Jim slept soundly and had a good appetite for breakfast. What a ridiculous farce it has all become. The guardianship over Gallagher was a fake—an excuse for paying two loafers $125 a month apiece and for pretending that Gallagher was in great danger of being kidnapped or assassinated. Tragedy has passed through the successive stages of comedy and farce to the broadest burlesque. It is now in order for the veracious Bulletin to charge that the "higher-ups" corrupted Gallagher's guards and spirited away Big Jim from under the protective care of Spreckels, Phelan, Heney, Langdon & Company. But unfortunately the sawdust is falling out of all the stuffed figures in the play.

Kentucky's Next Campaign

"We shall elect the next state ticket in Kentucky," emphatically declared Senator W. O. Bradley, of that state, at the Raleigh. Senator Bradley arrived in Washington yesterday in time to attend the session of the senate. It was his first appearance in the senate chamber this session. The senator has been kept at home by illness, but his appearance last night did not indicate that he is a sick man.

"The next governor of Kentucky will be a Republican," continued Senator Bradley. "You can bet on that, if you are a betting man. The Blue Grass State has joined the ranks of the Republican states. It is not at all surprising that we lost the state in the last election. Experience has proved that the Republicans always have an off year in state elections when county officers are chosen at the same time. That was the case last time, and is the reason we lost the legislature. We will not lose it next time. I know it appears to involve a political revolution, but I am confident that we shall elect enough members of the house of representatives to more than offset the Democratic majority in the senate, which the latter body will have in the next legislature because of the holdovers. We shall have to elect enough Republicans in the house to give us twenty-three majority, but I think we can do it."

Senator Bradley said he was in good health and that reports of his critical illness were untrue.—Washington Post.

Traffic Notes

The Union Pacific has announced that it will make the same rates on lumber shipments from Washington to points east of Denver as it now makes on lumber from Oregon. This is one of the first traffic moves made by the Harriman lines since gaining access to Puget Sound.

The Western Pacific has made traffic agreements with the Southern Pacific and the Atchafalaya, Topeka & Santa Fe by which westbound transcontinental freight over the W. P. will be billed to points on the other lines as far south as San Margarita and Bakerfield, as well as to all Northern California.

The western roads have been trying vainly to reach an understanding about the making of reduced passenger rates during 1910. At one time it was announced that a decision had been made, but some of the roads looked over the traces, and now the matter is in an entirely unsettled condition. A two days' conference was held by the passenger officers in Chicago last week, which resulted in the entire matter being referred to the executive officers.

The immigrant bureau of the Western Passenger Association has issued the following figures showing the arrivals at the port of New York for the first eleven months of 1909 and of 1908: In 1909, aliens, 245,785; citizens, 26,131; total, 271,916. In 1908, aliens, 287,820; citizens 32,811; total, 320,631.

OURSELVES, AND THEN AS OTHERS SEE US

A very intelligent young woman, perhaps we might say over-intelligent, writes that in her efforts toward right living and the serious study of a serious profession, she has found that by degrees she has been forced to dispense with various friendships that were pleasant, but hurtful, as she deemed, in their influence.

She at first tried to "arrange her life," so she writes, in such a manner that two dearly loved friends would suffice, but circumstances took these friends away to other cities and now she lives a lonely life without the stimulant of sympathy and human companionship, says Kate Masterson in the Chicago Inter Ocean.

The difficult question she puts is whether such a life is better than one in which she would continue to "take the risks" of acquaintanceships, which would probably mean loss of time and a break in her habits of studious work, which are not conducive to light companionship, which she describes as "frivolous."

This question in itself and in its wording, betrays a lamentable and stilted attitude on the part of the writer. It is entirely too self-conscious to be mentally wholesome, and there is considerable vanity glory about this tremendously serious point of view.

From a young schoolgirl it might be excused. From a young woman who has advanced in the study of a profession it is a confession that the very aloofness in which the writer holds herself from her kind, has already resulted in a certain lack of human understanding.

Without even knowing the depths of frivolity or idleness disapproved of in the discarded friends, it is quite safe to say that the point of view taken by any one who boldly and baldly declares her actions, ideas and rules of living to be entirely without flaw, is a mistaken one.

She also condemns too utterly the companions whom she describes as idle, frivolous, light-minded.

She can hardly be competent to judge so sweepingly as all this. Many persons adopt a rather light manner in order that they may not bore people by their over-intense view of themselves.

This degree of self-centered existence is often a far more serious flaw than many of the lesser evils. It argues an inverted attitude and a too palpable self-approval. It suggests a smugness, a consciousness of merit, that which nothing can be more hurtful to mind and character generally.

Nothing can prove more of a deterrent in the achievement of success—even a partial success.

"This is very plain talk, but nothing can quite meet this particular form of density, except a thorough argument. We can none of us assume that our own way is all right, and that of others all wrong. We can only view it as we see it, and as we know our own environment, influences, training, etc."

To live by set rules, avoiding irregular hours or idleness, is a good plan, but much more than this is needed for right living, which in itself can never be entirely negative. We cannot hold away from all who do not hold our own views and retain a good balance.

We must learn to tolerate and bear and compare and learn from others. Isolation from our own kind cannot invite anything but a too self-concentrated heart and soul. Human sympathy, brotherhood and neighborly love are the trinity that heaven life—that short journey that we take together, helping one another forgiving one another and never assuming a coat of impenetrable perfection.

There are many faults too small to consider that are outbalanced in time by the better qualities, although they may seem to predominate.

Harsh judgment and unkindness are dangerous cankers. One who finds it necessary to dispense with a friend because of a fault or a few faults is lacking in heart, in generosity. Such a tendency becomes actually hideous as life goes on. Such people often, sadly unconscious, find themselves alone and disliked and wonder why.

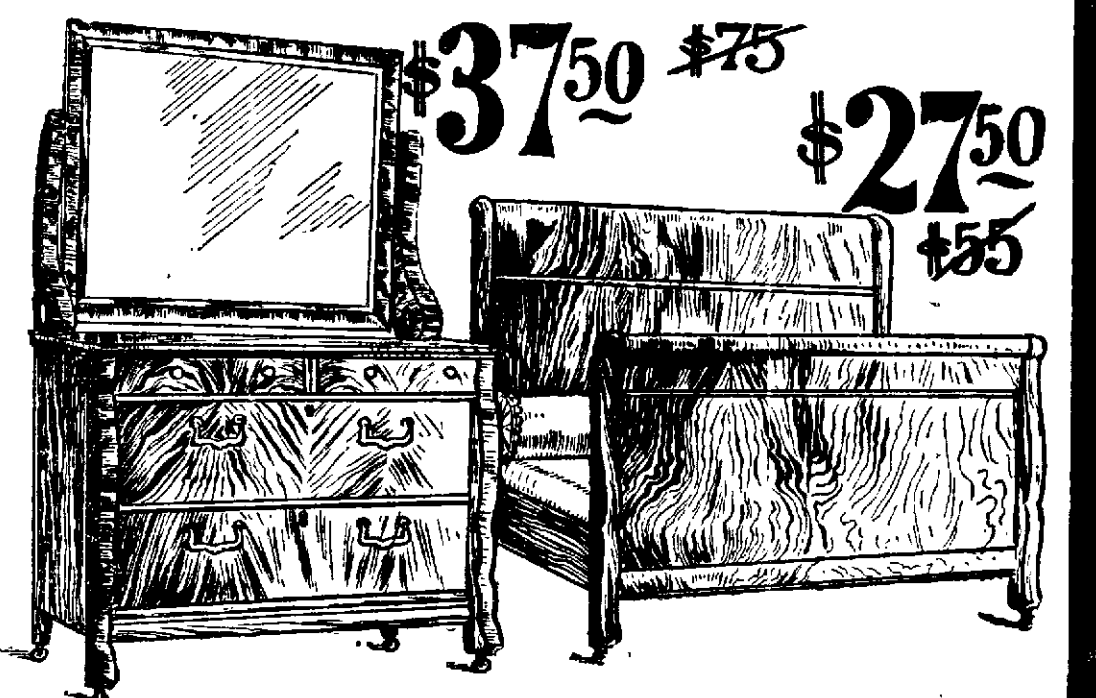

The frivolous and the idle are often aware of their lacking qualities and may be helped by a little kindness. They are never self-complacent and sometimes they astonish everyone by the depths of sacrifice of which they are capable.

To stand off and wonder what is the best for ourselves is a poor way to take life and what may appear most to the over-serious one is an injurious way. Each individual had to radiate this goodness, giving it out on all sides. When it was not radiated the star channels became clogged and congested and growth, life, happiness ceased.

This idea may make it plain to all of us who suffer from the introverted attitude—just how we must live in the world among those of our kind—all of the same family. We cannot shut ourselves up in a secluded perfection or what we deem perfection. We must not be too good for our world, if we would be healthy, happy and loved. Such ideas as this positively deform the features and draw the lips into straight, unlovely lines—a danger signal to those we meet along life's way.

DOG-CATCHER HURTS

KNEE OF FIRE CHIEF
SAN ANSELMO, Jan. 29.—Another chapter was added today to the long list of dog troubles that has kept the nerves of San Anselmo citizens on edge for the past month, when Arthur Stedley, a prominent real estate man, attempted to catch a dog with a net, missing the animal and dislodging the knee of J. J. Friesbeck, chief of the local fire department.

A week ago Friesbeck sustained a dislocated knee when a bale of hay fell across his leg. The joint was set and in a few days he was able to be about and the knee was mending rapidly. All went well until tonight when he hobbled to the office of Stedley, followed by a collie dog. When Stedley saw the collie he went after it with a dog net, which is attached to a heavy iron hoop. The wire animal jumped over the net and the heavy hoop hit Friesbeck on the injured knee, dislocating it again.

It is claimed that the pair working together have cleaned up a large amount of money under false pretenses. A good description has been furnished the detectives.

KIMBALL SHOWS FRIENDLINESS FOR MADRIZ

American Admiral's Attitude Towards Nicaraguan President Arouses Ire of Rebels

WASHINGTON ACCUSED OF CHANGE OF FRONT

Defeat of Vasquez Was Complete Rout, Say Reports Confirming Battle

BLUEFIELDS (Nicaragua, via Wireless to Colon, Jan. 29).—Rear Admiral Kimball, in command of the American fleet in Nicaraguan waters, is accused today by both the natives and American residents of undue friendliness to President Madriz and intense indignation against him has been aroused.

The rear admiral's warning to American residents in Nicaragua to take no part in the revolution under penalty of forfeiting the protection of the United States is construed as meaning a justification of the execution of the execution of Groce and Cannon, the Americans who were shot to death after being court-martialed.

ACTING UNDER INSTRUCTIONS.
It is presumed that the rear-admiral is acting under instructions from the American State Department, which gives rise to the fear in this revolutionary stronghold that the United States will recognize the presence of Madriz in the event of the triumph of the government forces over the revolutionary army.

Confirmation of the defeat of General Vasquez by General Chamorro, the revolutionary leader, in a battle at San Tomas, was received here today. The defeat of Vasquez amounted to a complete rout and the scattered remnants of his army are reported as fleeing toward Managua.

The result of the campaign against Managua has been a successful one, and the revolutionists predict the fall of the capital within the next few weeks.

General Chamorro is seriously wounded. However, physicians say he probably will not die.
The chief of the provisional army, who commanded the Estrada forces in the battle of the last few days, personally led the charge on the batteries in the center of the Madriz lines. Although severely wounded, Chamorro kept on task until the guns were silenced and the administration's forces were completely routed. He is now in a provincial hospital at Acapuz.

GRANITE SHAFT FOR POOR GRAVE

Banker James Murray Pays Tribute to His Old Friend, John Maguire

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—James Murray, the Montana banker, who spent much of his time at Monterey, is in the city to purchase a suitable granite monument to place over the grave of his old friend, John Maguire, who died about a year ago. His last resting place is unknown to the family of Monterey.

John Maguire was a prominent character in the early theatrical history of San Francisco, the Northwest and Montana. He was stage manager of the Bella Union, the Baldwin Theater and Grand Opera House in their earlier history twenty-five or thirty years ago.

Maguire had means when Murray was a struggling miner. But they were friends and their attachment never cooled after their positions became reversed in the matter of wealth. Maguire was generous and extravagant to a fault and when reverses crowded upon him he never was able to recoup. Proud and independent, he would not let his friends assist him.

He married and lived here and there and finally met a peaceful end in the good old town so fondly loved by Robert Louis Stevenson. Banker Murray who now owns the Tevis hacienda in Monterey, recently heard of the burial place of his old friend. So as a tribute of love and respect for his old chum he is to give his grave a fitting granite monument.

CANNERS PLAN TO BOOST VEGETABLES

Annual Meet Plans for Many Subjects of Interest to National Association

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 29.—The national agitation for vegetarianism will receive the biggest boost of its career when the third annual convention of the National Canners' Association is held here from February 7 to 11, inclusive. A program has been prepared ranging in topics from the exact way to select tomatoes down to the momentous problem of forcing America to become a nation of vegetarians.

The feature of the gathering will be an address by M. H. Hogerle, president of the Minnesota Canners' Association, of St. Bonifacius, Minn., upon the subject, "How to Increase the Consumption of Canned Vegetables." This speech will sound the keynote of the national crusade for greater consumption of vegetables.

There will be a Lincoln dinner on February 12, the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, and Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry at Washington, will speak on purity in foods.

This will not be a canned convention. Among the topics to be discussed are the following: A. J. Stevens of St. Joseph, Mo., on "Sanitary Packaging"; Joseph Wolfinger of Dundas, Wis., on "Seed Peas and the Grading of Peas"; W. C. Smiley of Roanoke, Va., on "Scalding and Peeling Tomatoes"; H. M. Carty of Madisonville, Ky., on "The Conscious Canner"; W. C. Leitch of Columbus, Wis., on "Co-operation of Pure Food Officials"; J. H. Hunt of San Francisco on "Quality"; Robert Scott of Cadis, Ohio, on "Canned Goods Flier Talk."

The National Canned Goods and Dried Fruit Brokers' Association will meet in conjunction with the canners.

THE ALVEOLAR METHOD ("TEETH WITHOUT PLATES")

A Revolution in Dentistry

The Alveolar Method in brief

Revolutionized old methods

Largest Dental Business in the world

A simple method

Nothing to dread about work

Beautiful teeth, beautiful face

Read this letter from Mr. J. R. Thurston, Montgomery and Francisco Sts., San Francisco Phone C 5538

Teeth examined free

Free book on Alveolar Method

A vast army of patients

Beware of the imitations

Welcome to our offices

Briefly, the Alveolar Method is a plan by which missing teeth can be restored and put into the mouth so that they will be as firm and natural looking as nature's teeth. All that is required is that there be two or more teeth left in either jaw upon which to build the structure.

A few years ago when this extraordinary method was first offered to the public the company met with a great deal of skepticism regarding this revolutionary method. Up to that time there had been nothing before known or practiced where teeth were missing than to supply the defect with false teeth, either upon partial plates or by means of so-called bridgework, both plans being imperfect and unsatisfactory.

The success of The Rex Dental Company Incorporated who operate and control the Alveolar Method in this country, has been so marked that at the present time it does the largest dental business in the world, having offices in San Francisco, Oakland, Los Angeles, Sacramento and Fresno.

The beauty of the Alveolar Method lies in its simplicity. Nature's plan of growing teeth in the gums is followed as closely as possible, although it must be understood that the company does not perform any surgical operation, neither do we bore or cut into the gums to implant these teeth. There is nothing about it that one would need dread, and yet when the work is completed the Alveolar teeth are just as useful and can be used with as much comfort as though they had grown in the mouth. Not only that, but they are beautiful to look at, and transform a face that would otherwise be disfigured into a beautiful and attractive one. There is no feature about the human face that adds so much to its attractiveness as beautiful teeth. This is generally conceded, so if your teeth are not perfect, or if you are afflicted with a partial plate or an ordinary piece of bridgework, be prepared for an agreeable surprise when you find out what this company can do for you through the Alveolar Method.

We take pleasure in submitting the following letter from one of our patients who has had two years' use of his Alveolar teeth. This letter will show how highly these teeth are regarded by those who wear them:

Empire Construction Co., 787 Market Street, San Francisco, Jan. 18, 1910.

The Rex Dental Co.,
Dear Sirs: It affords me great pleasure in writing you, that I have had a full set of your Alveolar teeth in my mouth for two years, and they are as good as when you first put them in. I cannot tell the difference from my natural teeth, only that I had trouble with the natural ones, while with the Alveolar set I am free of pain and not having to run to the dentist's every little while. I would not take any amount of money for the work you did for me, if I knew I could get no others like them. Knowing from my own experience what I do about the Alveolar treatment, I would advise everyone whose teeth are loose and had and they need new ones, to take your Alveolar treatment and by no means to resort to a plate, without first going to see what the Rex Dental Co. can do for them. I cannot give you praise enough for what you did for me and will be only too glad and pleased to show any one the work you have done for me. Will be glad to answer all inquiries at my address.

Thanking you many times for your Alveolar treatment in my case, I remain
Your truly,
(Signed) J. R. THURSTON.

Montgomery and Francisco Sts., San Francisco. Home Phone C55 8.

We cordially invite all those whose teeth need attention, whether they are missing or loose and irregular, to come at once to one of our offices (address given below), and allow our consulting dentists to examine their mouth carefully. This service is absolutely free and does not obligate one to have any work done unless they so desire. If it is not possible to come to our offices in person, send for our book, "Alveolar Dentistry," and read up on the subject. This book is one of the most valuable treatises ever written on the teeth, and is written in plain and convincing language, and easily understood by laymen. It is also free for the asking.

Within the last four years more than 12,000 patients have been supplied with Alveolar teeth in our different offices, which is convincing proof that the method is all that we claim for it.

We would caution you against unscrupulous dentists who are making use of our advertising and promising work similar to the Alveolar Method. A number of these we have enjoined, and we shall continue to enjoin as fast as our attention is drawn to their nefarious work. The teeth are too valuable a part of the human engine to be trifled with, for, once gone, they are gone forever.

It gives us pleasure to welcome all to our offices, and we hope you will favor us with an early call if you are in need of dentistry in any of its branches. We have banished the dread of the dental chair as surely as we have banished the cumbersome, ill-fitting makeshift known as the partial plate and the torturesome, destructive and unsanitary bridge.

"NAPA VALLEY" WILL LEAVE WAYS SOON

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—On the morning of February 12 the new bay and river steamer Napa Valley will be launched from the Union Iron Works for the Monticello Steamship company, and invitations are now out for the event. The Napa Valley is a steel vessel, costing $320,000, and will be used on the route connecting this city with Vallejo and Mare Island. The steamer resembles the General Frisbie, now on the route, but is a much larger and better equipped vessel, with a capacity for 2000 passengers. By May 1st it is expected the Napa Valley will be in commission. Her speed will be twenty-one miles an hour. The launching is set for Lincoln's birthday, and, on this account, as well as for other reasons, a large crowd is expected to witness the handsome steamer's dip into the water.

CHIYO MARU BRINGS HEAVY CARGO LISTS

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—Observing schedule time with her usual promptness the Japanese turbine liner Chiyo Maru is to arrive here next Thursday, probably before noon. The steamer left Honolulu at 8 o'clock Friday night. There are sixty-six cabin passengers, all from the Orient, and 299 Asiatic steerage passengers. 229 of these being destined for this city, sixty-six for Mexico and four for Panama.

Assistant General Manager W. H. Avery of the Toyo Kisen Kaisha, to which company the Chiyo Maru belongs, is returning home in the liner, accompanied by M. Shiraishi, who is also a passenger in the Chiyo Maru. At a recent meeting of the company in Yokohama the capitalization was greatly increased, and arrangements made for improved service.

The cargo of the Chiyo Maru amounts to 2273 tons, of which 1375 are consigned to overland points, notable items being 124 tons of raw silk and silk goods, 6 tons of mulling and 268 tons of tea and other merchandise.

WIRELESS ON COASTERS.
SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—One after the other the coasting steamers are having wireless apparatus installed, until already it is rather uncommon for a passenger steamer running coastwise to be without this convenience to the owners and passengers. The latest steamer to have wireless installed, until now, is the Casado, Shoshone and Yellowstone, of Charles R. McCormick & Co.'s fleet. Their new steamer Klamath, on the San Francisco and Portland route, began her first voyage with a wireless plant.

Says Sunday, Not
Saturday, Is Day
Of Jewish Worship

F. JOSEPH SPENCER, English minister who says that the Jews observe wrong day of rest.

TRUTHFUL Jan. 29.—That Sunday is the right day of worship and is the seventh day of the week instead of the first is now in vogue will be the text of a lecture to be given Wednesday evening in the Alameda Methodist Church by Rev. Spencer, who is a graduate of Cambridge College, England, contends that the Jewish people are wrong in their observance of Saturday as their day of worship and that their practice is due to a mixing of the keeping of their history and that Sunday is the seventh instead of the first day of the week because King Charles the First and Cromwell who followed him as England's rulers met last evening at the Armory edit.

Rev. Spencer has studied the question for many years and has conducted his search for proof in the Jewish Mission. He especially invites persons of Hebrew faith or descent from his views to attend his lecture.

REICHSTAG PUT IN AN UPROAR

Conservative Member Insults
Kaiser and Government
Amid Cheers of Partisans

BERLIN Jan. 29.—The Reichstag was the scene of an angry demonstration today when in the course of a speech Herr Von Odenburg, a conservative Agrarian declared the "German Emperor asking of Prussia must have the right at any moment to order Prussian Lieutenant to come here and with ten men close the Reichstag."

The members on the left side rose to their feet protesting with shouts of "impudence" and "breach of the constitution."

The speakers joined in the uproar which lasted for several minutes.
Finally Herr Schuler, Liberal made a formal protest against Odenburg's remarks which he said constituted a grave insult to the Reichstag and to the Emperor and army. The conservative members, however, would not thundering applause. Herr Singer, Socialist, speaking to a point of order, said that he assumed that the President had not heard Odenburg's declaration, otherwise he would have indicated
the honor of the Reichstag.

Prince Von Hohenlohe who was presently admitted that he had heard the words objected to but said he indicated the speaker as meaning only to indicate the degree to which military discipline must be carried.

Odenburg immediately confirmed this interpretation of his statement.

FOURTEEN GUILTY OF A CONSPIRACY

Jury in the "Black Hand" Cases
Return Verdict Against Sicilians

TOLEDO O., Jan. 29.—The jury in the "Black Hand" cases in the Federal Court here today returned a verdict of guilty as charged against the fourteen Sicilians whose trial has been on for the past two weeks on the charge of conspiracy and using the United States mail in furtherance of the same. Sentences ranging from two to sixteen years were passed on eleven of the prisoners and three were granted new trials.

Spirited away to prevent bomb outrages or any violence on the part of the friends of the convicted blackhanders, the Sicilians were hurried to a remote part of the city in a bus from the Federal building and loaded into a private car that will take them to the United States prison at Leavenworth, Kan.

ENGLISH BISHOPS 'PASS THE BUCK'

Usually Awake to Political Issues, 'Lords Spiritual' Hiber-nate During Turmoil

By D. A. FRANCIS
NEW YORK Jan. 29.—It is difficult for us here in America to realize the prominent position in politics taken by the bishops of the English church. Of course, if they have a seat in the House of Lords, the very fact that they are "Lords Spiritual" renders it not only fitting but necessary that they rise to the serious responsibility which thus devolves upon them. The last two months have seen one of the greatest struggles in English political history and in many occasions very bitter things have been said on either side.

It has been the custom of the Bishop of Manchester to send out at the beginning of the New Year a letter to his Diocese in which the prominent issues of the day are considered.
This year when every one expected that he would have some pretty vir-ginal remarks to make with regard to the political issues at stake, he produced a letter of astonishment as well as pleasure by a review of subjects which showed that wide vision which looks beyond the immediate turmoil to the general movements of the time.

It is an age when such men of vision are especially needed for certainly there never has been an era in the history of civilization when such world-wide movements have engaged the restless minds of the active thinkers and workers in the great struggle of life as are setting about us at the present moment.

of the Missouri, for duty as acting judge advocate of that department.

GOMPERS PRAISES SOCIETY WOMEN

Says They Prevented Shirtwaist Makers From Starving

NEW YORK Jan. 29.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, presided this afternoon at a conference of women called to discuss how to secure the best possible cooperation of the women of unorganized industries for the cause of organized labor.
The matter of the organization of new women's trades unions was taken up among the conferees were Mrs. O.
H. P. Belmont, Miss Annie Morgan,
Miss Elizabeth Marbury, Miss Ida M.
Tappan, Mrs. Eva MacDonald Valett, general organizer for the American Federation of Labor, and Miss Mary
Drier, president of the Women's Trade Union League of New York.

It is a source of great satisfaction to know that the society women of New York have taken up the cause of the shirtwaist strikers. Mr. Gompers said. Had it not been for their support the girls probably would have been starved and beaten into submission some time ago.
The organization of the co-operative shirtwaist factory by these patronesses of the strikers would prove helpful but not a solution of the difficulty. Its organization will not be on a sufficiently large scale to cause a solution of the trouble.

I have just come from Philadelphia where I conferred with the leaders of the street car strike and I am vehemently hopeful that a mutually honorable adjustment will be reached speedily.

she finds twenty in the top of her head
she uses all of them.—Atchison Globe

TAFT ANCESTRY DATES FROM MAYFLOWER

President Entitled to Coat of Arms of Codfish and Pussiant Quahang

CONGRESS MAY DECLARE GRANT CIVIL WAR VETERAN

Direct Primary Question Is Still An Unsettled Issue in Oregon

By RALPH H. WHITESIDE.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—From the forests of Aroostook to the breakers of Cos Cob, New England, many rejoiced, for it has been demonstrated that President Taft is a Mayflower descendant and is entitled to emblazon the sacred codfish and the pussiant quahang on his coat of arms.

By close search it has been found that one of Mr. Taft's ancestors was Francis Cook, who was one of the Mayflowerers. The General Board of the Mayflower society has passed on the matter and the great tidings have been conveyed to Mr. Taft. He will sign the roll of membership which will make him persona grata in the most exclusive circles of Back Bay society.

This discovery will have an important bearing on politics and should Mr. Taft run for President in 1912 it is freely predicted that it will secure for him the solid electoral vote of New England.

NEW HONORS FOR GRANT.
It is probable, too, that additional honors will be conferred on General Frederick Dent Grant. A movement is on foot to have a Congressional General Grant a veteran of the Civil War, so that he may become a really truly member of the G. A. R. While it doesn't seem easy to make a soldier of '65 in 1910, Congress can do it, in fact has done it.

As a ten-year-old boy, General Grant was on the battlefields around Vicksburg with his father, and on some of the days he carried messages for his father. In fact, he was wounded in the leg on that field.

What the G. A. R. wants Congress to do is to pass a bill authorizing General Grant to be placed on the roll of Civil War veterans. This is a bill which is now in the hands of the committee on the subject of the G. A. R. It would make his record complete and he would be eligible for the G. A. R. membership.

He would be made the youngest Civil War captain, and sometime, a few centuries hence, would be discovered to have been a boy hero.

This step has been taken in the case of one other man, William Sherman, son of General W. T. Sherman, who, like General Grant, saw some service as a boy, though he was not enlisted. Sherman was given a congressional rating as a Civil War veteran, and admitted to the G. A. R. He is now dead, and if General Grant receives a back-dated commission making him a Civil War soldier, he will be the only living man with such a distinction.

"DRY" WASHINGTON.
If Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire has his way the District of Columbia will be made a model for the country, so far as the restriction of liquor is concerned. This license bill, which by the way has a first rate chance to become a law, provides that before a license to sell liquor is granted, the licensee must have the consent of a majority of real estate owners and bona fide residents keeping house within the square on which the proposed saloon is situated.

Provisions are made prohibiting the sale of liquor to habitual drunkards, minors, etc. The sale of liquors is prohibited between the hours of 10 at night and 7 the next morning, and on Sundays and all holidays. In the case of clubs, the existing law is amended to regulate the sale between midnight and 7 o'clock in the morning.

The sale by druggists upon prescription is strictly regulated, and doctors are forbidden to prescribe liquor except in cases where they have made personal diagnosis and find liquor absolutely necessary as a medicine.

HOTEL LICENSES.
No license shall be issued to any hotel having less than 50 bed rooms, and none in any station, waiting room, depot, or station of any steam, electric railway, or other carrier for the transportation of passengers in the District. The sale of liquors in buckets, commonly known as "rush-ing the growler," is prohibited.

Drunkenness in the District is made a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of from $10 to $100, or imprisonment in the workhouse from 5 to 30 days, or both.

Free lunches are forbidden in places where liquor is sold.

PIES IN VOGUE AGAIN.
For some time pies—not patronage pies, but plain pies—were barred from the Senate restaurant. It is supposed that the making up of these same pies could not pass the eagle eyes and epicurean tastes of the Senatorial investigators.

Now, however, pies are again seen displayed in all their glory on the counters, in the cupboards, in the chandeliers, and all kinds of staple pies. The reason advanced for the advent of the pie once again is that the grand custodian of pies, Dick Shaw, has a new cook. Dick says his productions may not be as large as the Presidential pie that never showed up, but he will stake his reputation that the insides are on a par with any pie made, Presidential or any other kind.

OREGON POLITICS.
The direct primary question has not been settled in Oregon, notwithstanding the election of Mr. Chamberlain to the United States Senate by a Republican legislature," said former Senator Fred Mulkey, of that State, recently.

"It will be an issue in the next general election in Oregon. I shall not be a candidate for United States Senator against Senator Bourne, but I shall be against Senator Chamberlain five years hence, Senator Bourne and I agree on the primary law, and I could not consistently oppose him as a candidate.

"The preliminary skirmish on the question of the direct primary will be fought out next year, when Oregon will elect a governor, secretary of state and five judges of the Supreme Court. Opponents of the primary law plan to hold a convention before that time and name candidates for office, and the candidates chosen will

Deuel & Wright are the architects for a three and one-half story business block to be erected on the north side of Thirteenth street between Clay and Washington streets for A. N. Wachs. ## Moors Preparing for Outbreak in Spain

MADRID, Jan. 29.—Grave news from Melilla is contained in a letter signed by Senor Antonio Iglesias, correspondent of La Correspondencia de Espana, who says General Marina has officially declared the whole country at peace. Therefore, peace prevails "de jure," but not "de facto," for at Nador the Moors killed a man in one of the Spanish regiments and constantly fire upon the advance guards, and at many other points the calm is but apparent. At all "Zoco's" cartridges are sold in enormous quantities. They come from Tangier and other places, where they are smuggled in. The Moors have only handed to the Spaniards a few old guns, and openly declare that war will break out again when they deem it convenient, and that the Spaniards shall never work the mines.

MANY OF THE EVILS TO WHICH DIVORCEES ARE SUBJECTED AS TO BE BY TWO FRENCH SAVANTS

Dreaded Tuberculosis, Financial Setbacks, Less Ideas and Mental Aberration More Likely; Scientists Join in the Discussion

NEW YORK, January 29.—While the facts and figures recently offered by the French statisticians—Henri Coulof and Rene de Chavagnes of Paris—purporting to show that divorce is unhealthy are yet unconfirmed by the highest authorities of the science of statistics, many eminent practitioners in France and elsewhere think them worthy of profound reflection. Dr. John Duncan Quackenbush, author of "The Psychology of Happy Marriage," when seen today made interesting comment on the matter.

"If Messrs. Coulof and de Chavagnes' statistics and the deductions therefrom can be proved," he said, "there is a most important discovery. This discovery should be weighed and considered by people contemplating divorce and by all parties of marriageable age, by parents and students of sociology."

DIVORCED PEOPLE.

The French statistics submitted read as follows:

- Average days of illness of a grown-up person, per year, four days.
- Average days of illness of divorced man, per year, eleven days.
- Average days of illness of divorced woman, per year, sixteen days.
- Consumption demands more victims among divorced men.
- Mental diseases demand more victims among divorced women.
- On the average, divorced persons suffer financial setbacks, probably in consequence of physical or mental deterioration.
- The divorced artist has fewer original ideas.
- This divorced physician loses his most prominent patients.
- The divorced lawyer loses the most distinguished among his clients.
- The divorced merchant loses many customers.

"Whether all the above-mentioned are exact or not I cannot tell," continued Dr. Quackenbush, after reading the statistics carefully. "To some of them I take distinct exception."

SOME OF THE CAUSES.

"I have always held that it is the conspicuous infidelity with which betrothal and matrimony are regarded in this day, the thoughtless entrance into conjugal bonds, the mental reservation that so commonly lurks in a resolve to wed, the prospective incoherence of the picture of the marriage relation, which fosters in this country of ours the shocking prevalence of divorce for the most unjustifiable causes."

"This would indicate that the cause behind the average divorce is due to ante-nuptial carelessness rather than the subsequent tribulations of married life."

"At any rate, the place to begin the cure of marital infidelity is not the divorce court, but the early home. The time is not after marriage, but before."

AS TO PERFECT MARRIAGE.

"Perfect marriage implies perfect conditions of companionship. Each party to it must find comfort and uplift in the association with its fellow. How can they, if marriages are made in the market-place rather than in heaven?"

"These Frenchmen say they are working on another set of statistics purporting to show that the majority of people seeking divorce are less healthy than the married man or married woman, because they brought into their new condition of life the roots of disease, mental or physical, or both."

HEALTH OF DIVORCE.

"Mind, I do not admit the correctness of the figures. I only say they are interesting, giving much food for reflection, while the whole subject is important and demands close investigation."

"One thing I will not stand for—the assertion that 'consumption demands more victims among divorced men than among married men.' Only world-wide statistics, approved by the highest international authorities, could persuade me of the correctness of that statement."

"While the facts and figures quoted are being thrust out by the responsible authorities, let us reflect on the old saying that no wife should allow another woman to be more thoughtful of her husband than she is herself, or to appear to better advantage in his eyes. The same principle applies to the man."

LOVE IS RATIONAL.

"Love is rational susceptibility. There must be reason in it. A man made in love with a woman who fails to reciprocate is not rational in his passion."

"A woman who becomes negative in the absence of her affianced does not leave from the highest standpoint. Should marriage occur under such circumstances disaster—that is, divorce—impends."

While several lawyers prominently connected with the divorce courts were ready to admit, on general principles, that divorce is more than a legal device, one of the prominent New York attorneys—an undoubted authority on the subject—was disinclined, from his personal experience, to admit the statement.

SUICIDE TOO FREQUENT.

"Suicidal suicide, due to mental or physical ill health, and divorced parties, is far too frequent," this lawyer said. "Only the other day a poor woman, accused by her husband on the stand, went stark, staring mad in court, and a few mornings ago I read of the dangerous condition of a prominent actress, as a result of a strenuous manhood, whose term of illness strangely coincided with the divorce suit instituted by her husband, but while I handle hundreds upon hundreds of divorce cases, my own practice was singularly free from such distressing features connected with divorce."

"The contemplation of divorce and the preparation for trial no doubt brings on mental depression and worry. When they first come to the lawyer's office, women cry and carry on; men look nervous."

INDUSTRIAL LOBBY INVADERS CONGRESS

Will Try to Compel National Lawmakers to Repeal Corporation Tax

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Manufacturers and officials of industrial corporations from all parts of the country are moving on Washington for a siege to force the repeal of the corporation tax clause of the new tariff law. They have brought their clerks and have come to stay. Paraphrasing a somewhat famous remark of General Grant, they announce they will get what they want if it takes all winter.

John M. Glenn of Chicago, secretary of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, accompanied by interested persons, together with delegations from Minnesota, Wisconsin, Indiana, and other States are the advance guards of the great industrial lobby.

They got here this morning. The lobby that is gathering is not going to be easily repelled. They made an attempt in that direction just before Christmas, and they are still rubbing the sore spots the encounter left. This time they are going straight to Congress, beginning with the single item, namely, who is to receive the delegation tomorrow morning.

The missionary work of the lobby is expected to be most effective with members of the House. The manufacturers will try to present two bills out of the Parkside route, giving a twenty-minute service. The growth of the district demands better service, so the Food Improvement Club maintains, and a request for an improvement has been conveyed.

INSTALL A BETTER PARKSIDE SERVICE

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—The United Railroads announces that service on the Parkside line, running from Twentieth avenue and 12th street to Ferry hill, will be improved by placing an additional car on the route. The present two cars run on the Parkside route, giving a twenty-minute service. The growth of the district demands better service, so the Food Improvement Club maintains, and a request for an improvement has been conveyed.

ALLEGED BIGAMIST IS TAKEN BACK TO EAST

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 29.—The details of his extradition having been completed with Emil Carl Von Mueller, the alleged bigamist, started eastward today in charge of detectives from Hoboken, N. J. Sergeant Thomas A. McDonald, one of the Hoboken officers, said that among the crimes charged against Mueller was the theft of $300 from Boris Albrecht, after he had married her, and the divorce with $850 and $270, respectively, belonging to Anna Jacobs and Regina Veilman, later wives. The latter is prosecuting the bigamy charge. Von Mueller also has a wife in this city.

BE SLAIN WITH IMPUNITYEnormity of Situation Is Reflected by Former Ambassador Andrew D. White

ITHICA, N. Y., Jan. 29.—I will make you a prophecy. It is now January 29. I say that before the 25th of next January comes around 1000 men and women in the United States will have been murdered. But for the maladministration of the criminal laws of the United States they would have escaped.

This strong statement was made by Andrew D. White, former ambassador to Germany and former president of the University of the State of New York, in a remarkable interview today.

HUMAN LIFE CHEAP
The general new program was completed with a very high price. The general new program was completed with a very high price. The general new program was completed with a very high price.

Human life is so cheap in the United States that men and women may be murdered almost with impunity. There are men in the city of New York today who are ready to murder a man for a few dollars. There are men in the city of New York today who are ready to murder a man for a few dollars.

MURDER IN CALIFORNIA
The story of brutal murders heard in California and the impotence of the law to stop them with force is followed up in this issue.

My investigations show a startling state of affairs. There has been in this country a steady increase in the number of criminal homicides. Twenty-five years ago there were about 1500 homicides yearly in the United States. There are now 8000 every year.

LEADS WORLD IN HOMICIDES
The United States leads the world in the number of criminal homicides. The United States leads the world in the number of criminal homicides. The United States leads the world in the number of criminal homicides.

Canada has three per cent on people. Germany less than England. Scotland and Wales about 14. France about 16. The United States 125. The United States 125. The United States 125.

SOME ILLUMINATING FACTS
The statistics make plain two illuminating facts. First, that Belgium which is the highest has no death penalty. Second, that which is the lowest, seven eighths of the men tried for murder were punished by death.

In London there are thirteen homicides in one year. In the United States there are eight. In the United States there are eight. In the United States there are eight.

TRIALS ARE A FARCE
When asked to explain the causes for this crime wave Dr. White pointed forward and emphatically said: "The trial is a farce. The trial is a farce. The trial is a farce."

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Jan. 29.—In the production of "The Man From Home," which has been announced for February 7th, the Savard and Sandals schools of Stanford expect to present the biggest crowd ever seen on the college stage. Some of the most surprised people in the world live right here in Oakland. This condition is the result of what they have seen in the district which has just been annexed. For years they had heard of Fruitvale, Alcorse, Fitchburg, Highland, Elmhurst, Dimond, Allendale, Westall and Gulah and had supposed that they were mere hamlets, small places in a sparsely settled country and they wondered that anyone would live here when they could live within the municipality of Oakland.

Now the Civic League, knowing how many people entertained such views, has made it a point to take some of these people out to this section, have shown them around and have found a country it is and introduced them to the residents.

STORK HOVERS NEAR DUTCH QUEEN

GOSSIP OF DRAMA ALL OVER THE COUNTRY

Again Loving Subjects of Wilhelmina Grow Expectant for Future King

DESPITE RUMORS SHE AND HUSBAND ARE LOVERS

Views of French Authorities on the Much Discussed Subject of Suffragettes

(By MARQUIS DE CASTELLANE.)

PARIS, Jan. 29.—I think I can give you some interesting news. Queen Wilhelmina of Holland bids fair to make her subjects the happiest people in the world. Again there is hope of an heir to the throne of Holland; again the Dutch folk are looking eagerly forward to soon having a little edition of the queen's husband for a future king.

There has been much gossip concerning the domestic life of this royal pair. Now I happen to know that the little queen has always been desperately in love with her big husband. She married him for love and she has never ceased to love him, despite gossip and court scandal.

AN IDEAL WIFE.
Indeed it was with her devotion to him that she came to lose her first two children. She insisted on following him everywhere he went, especially on horseback, at times when she should have remained quietly at rest. The prince, too, in a rough German fashion, has shown himself to be a man of heart.

The faithful people of Holland are devotedly attached to the little Princess Juliana but it is of the most vital importance that the queen should give them a prince who will one day be their king. They have only to be patient, for Wilhelmina is only 34 and in robust health, so that there may be a whole nursery full of little princes to delight their hearts and further their hopes of a king.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS IN FRANCE.
I have been asking a few well-known persons as to their opinion of the women's rights movement in France. I talked with Mlle. Lucie Felix Faure, daughter of the late president of France and she said:

"Woman is admittedly greater than man from an economic point of view. Is it not absurd that she should be considered inferior to a political standpoint. In these days most questions are settled by popular opinion. Why then should the saner, certainly the soberer half of humanity be silent? It is neither reasonable nor logical."

Marcel Prevost, one of our best known novelists, said:
"I have already put myself on record in favor of votes for women. I stand for equal rights in all things for both sexes."

FAMUET'S VIEWS.
Another eminent academician, Emile Famuet, said:
"I believe the women of every country would stand for sane conservatism and a high standard of morality. They are less sensual, less criminal and certainly more sober than men. By all means let the women vote."

My own opinion, if you would care for that, is that universal female suffrage is more important for the progress of humanity than was the destruction of the Bastille. All men of intelligence who have studied the question are in favor of female suffrage. Condorcet in France, Mill and Gladstone in England, Lincoln in America, would have given women the right to vote.

AMERICAN STAGE SUFFERS FROM UNDERWORLD PLAYS

Nance O'Neil's Triumphs Lead Her Ambitions to Play Shakespeare in Paris

(By JAMES GRANT THURSTON.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—There can be no contradicting the assertion that our national drama, as typified in the New Theater, will be elevated by the acquisition of Mme. Bertha Kalich, the Yiddish tragedienne. Mme. Bertha will make her first appearance at the New Theater on February 14th in "The Witch." This play is the first new one to follow "Twelfth Night." The actress has been ill for some time and her present appearance in rehearsals for "The Witch" constitute her first public appearance for several months.

"The Witch" was written by H. Wiers-Jensen, a Norwegian, and was produced in 1909 at the National Theater in Copenhagen, where it created a sensation. It is founded upon conditions in Norway in the year of 1692 and number of changes were necessary to adapt it to the American stage. These were made by Professor Hagedorn, instructor of English in Harvard University.

The cast will include Guy Bates Post, Beverly Sills, Ben Johnston, William McVay and Albert Bruns, all members of the New Theater company.

MISS ALLEN'S TOUR.
Miss Maud Allen, who is engaged upon her first American tour in this city, is showing something new in the dancing line. Fresh from London and Paris, where she won laurels as the fair dancer took New York's breath away with a version of the bare-limbed art fantastic and artistic in extreme. Miss Allen, according to her press agent, is appearing in a dance made famous on the banks of the Nile 2000 years ago. This particular dance is supposed to have been a great favorite among the Egyptians. Manhattan theater-goers who saw Gertrude Hoffman in the spring dance thought that the limit was near, but Miss Allen shows that there isn't going to be any limit.

UNDERWORLD THEMES.

The American stage is being deluged with Parisian underworld themes, out of which the Apache dance, in "Paris by Night," stands all alone. The Apache dance, as the name indicates, is a whirl common among the Apaches of Paris. To those who don't know a Parisian Apache corresponds to an American yegman. From what I have seen of the dance at Hammerstein's it requires nothing more than a very muscular man and a woman with India rubber bones. The dance grew out of a comic incident in underworld Parisian life, when an Apache's girl comes in at night and announces that she has earned no money for him. Then starts the dance.

"Fast music, professor, ragtime; ah, thank you," the man says, crosses the stage and grabs the woman around the waist bending back her head until she describes a parabola. Then he gives her a shove, which lands her in a heap on the other side. As she amuses the man rushes to a table and catches the ankles, swinging her around something after the manner in which an athlete swings Indian clubs. The Apache, if that name goes, describes several circles through the air, falling with what the cub reporter calls a dull, sickening thud. This is kept up until both are exhausted, then the dance is over.

The onrush of French risqué plays is on in earnest. We have "The Belle of the Boulevard," which has been stopped by the hardened New York police three times; "The Girl in the Taxi," which is now thrilling Chicago "Paris by Night," "The Queen of the Moulin Rouge," not to mention others en route.

MISS GLASER BETTER.
Lulu Glaser, who has now completely recovered from her illness, inaugurated her season in "One of the Boys" in New Haven this week. "One of the Boys" is a musical comedy of the present-day standard. In this latest production, Edith Glaser, William Glaser, Edward Favor and others known to musical comedy audiences.

FROHMAN SUCCESS.
Charles Frohman has added another success to his long train of triumphs in his newest musical comedy, "The Arcadians," first tried out at the Liberty Theater and found good. "The Arcadians" will be successful for two reasons first, the delightful music of Lionel Monckton and Howard Talbot, and second, for the endless humor, real humor, of Connie Ediles. Perceval Knight, the English comedian, fills the role of Peter Dookey, a jockey with a wasted life, but we never get a chance to laugh at the woes of Peter. Perceval won't give us pause in our mirth. I like "The Arcadians" for the simple reason that it gets away from the old stale scenes about Broadway and Forty-second street. The same is said in England, and right merrily it shifts from foxglove London to the "Askword race course." There is no end of dancing in the comedy and Miss Ethel Cadman, the English comedienne, has more than charmed the critics with her song and the work. There is scarce need to mention the fact that there is no plot. It is a musical comedy, you know.

GOING TO PARIS.
Miss Nance O'Neil, David Belasco's starlet in "The Lily" has found out that a human being is never satisfied. After having won success, fame, wealth and exalted position in the theatrical world, she is now dreaming of the day when she shall enact Shakespearean roles in Paris.

"Isn't it odd that one can't be satisfied," declared Miss O'Neil as she sat in a flowing yellow and purple Chinese gown in her dressing-room at the Stuyvesant Theater.

"When I was a school girl in San Francisco I dreamed of the day when I could be wealthy and independent and famous. I went upon the stage and worked very hard and my school-girl dreams have come true, but now I feel that I shall never be satisfied until I have acted in the same houses as Mme. Sarah Bernhardt in Paris, enacting tragic roles from Shakespeare. But I shall cheer up. My old dreams came true; why not my new ones?"

Here's a new scheme by which every purchaser at Jackson's is benefited
This, in addition to our regular easy payment plan of 1-10 down and 1-10 per month

It has been our aim to give a certain amount of our advertising appropriation back to our customers and let this in itself become a grater advertising medium. To do this and keep it clean from anything pertaining to lottery, also makes it possible for every purchaser to be benefited alike. We adopted the plan of giving some piece of furniture free with a certain amount purchased, or selling the article at the time for just half price on easy terms. And if at any time during the year the purchaser of the article bought the required amount (at one time) the price paid for same was credited to their purchase—and it has certainly proven very popular. NOW OUR NEW SCHEME IS STILL BETTER: If you buy the advertised article at the special price, on the easy terms, and if at any time during the year your purchases equal the amount specified the price paid for the advertised article will be credited to your purchase. (You don't have to buy the required amount all at one time). In other words, if you buy this Rocker, as advertised this week, and any time this year your purchase at Jackson's amounts to $30 or over, the price of the Rocker will be credited to your purchase.

Alleged Murderess, Including Virginia Wardlaw, Plead Not Guilty

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 29.—Miss Virginia Wardlaw, Mrs. Caroline Martin and Mrs. Mary Snead, charged with the murder of Mrs. Octy V. M. Snead, were arraigned today and pleaded not guilty. Chief Justice Gummers announced he would preside at the trial, which he set for the first Monday in April and asked for the first Monday in April and asked that all lawyers who appear in the case be attired in black and white in court. This is a revival of an old custom in New Jersey courts, which long ago fell into disuse.

D. A. R. FIGHT MAY WIND UP IN COURT

Split Over Convention City Arouses Los Angeles Women to Action

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 29.—Prominent members of the Daughters of the American Revolution here do not believe that a State division of the order will result from the dispute over the meeting place of this year's convention. They intimate that the most serious expression of the indignation of the Southern California Chapters, if Fresno be chosen, would be a very light attendance from the country south of the Tehachans. Eschscholtz, Chapter of this city will hold a meeting behind closed doors next Tuesday to consider the situation.

DECIDED ON LOS ANGELES

It is claimed by the Southern women that Los Angeles was decided upon for this year's convention at a meeting held by the advisory committee in San Francisco last February. The vote was unanimous. In November, it is said, Mrs. Frederick Jewell Laird, state regent, came to Los Angeles and appointed as chairman of a committee of arrangement Mrs. Henry C. Dillon, who at once selected a corps of assistants and preceeded with arrangements for the entertainment of the delegates. A convention hall was engaged and February 11 was selected as the date.

When a report was made to the state regent that the preliminaries had been completed, it is asserted, it was ignored and steps were taken to substitute Fresno as the convention city.

It was announced by leaders in the order today that a recourse to the courts to compel the holding of the convention in Los Angeles was improbable.

Any Woman Can Have Beautiful Hair

(From French Beauty Monthly)
"No woman should use water upon her hair oftener than once in two months," says M. Fournier, the noted French hair expert. "Dry powder only should be used to compel the hair to lose its oil and in time become thin."
"Any woman desiring abundant, lustrous hair should use a dry shampoo every two or three days. Mix a ounce of powdered orris root with four ounces of theriac. Sprinkle a tablespoonful of this mixture upon the hair; then brush the powder thoroughly through the hair. This will be light and fluffy, and beautiful. You will soon see new hair beginning to grow. This treatment is the thing that I am sure will produce growth of hair."
"This plain orris root is used dry shampoos by many women, and such results can be obtained by using the formula I have given."

STORK HOVERS NEAR DUTCH QUEEN

Again Loving Subjects of Wilhelmina Grow Expectant
for Future King

DESPITE RUMORS SHE AND HUSBAND ARE LOVERS

Views of French Authorities on the Much Discussed Subject of Suffragettes

(By MARQUIS DE CASTELLANE.)

PARIS, Jan. 29.—I think I can give you some interesting news. Queen Wilhelmina of Holland bids fair to make her subjects the happiest people in the world. Again there is hope of an heir to the throne of Holland; again the Dutch folk are looking eagerly forward to soon having in a little while the queen's husband for a future king.

There has been much gossip concerning the domestic life of this royal pair. Now I happen to know that the queen has been desperately in love with her big husband. She married him for love and she has never ceased to love him, despite gossip and court scandal.

AN IDEAL WIFE.

Indeed it was through her devotion to him that she came to lose her first two children. She insisted on following him everywhere he went, especially on horseback, at times when she should have remained quietly at rest. The prince, too, in a rough, German fashion, has shown himself to be a man of heart.

The faithful people of Holland are devotedly attached to the little Princess Juliana but it is of the most vital importance that the queen should give them a prince who will one day be their king. They have only to be patient, for Wilhelmina is only 34 and in robust health, so that there may be a whole nursery full of little princes to delight their hearts and further their hopes of a king.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS IN FRANCE.

I have been asking a few well-known persons as to their opinion of votes for women. I talked with Mlle. Lucie Felix Faure, daughter of the late president of France and she said:

"Woman is admittedly greater than man from an economic point of view. It is not absurd that she should be considered inferior a political standpoint. In these days most questions are settled by popular opinion. Why then should the same, certainly the soberer half of humanity be silent? It is neither reasonable nor logical."

Marcel Prevost, one of our best known novelists, said:

"I have already put myself on record in favor of votes for women. I stand for equal rights in all things for both sexes."

FAMULET'S VIEWS.

Another eminent academicien, Emile Famulet, said:

"I believe the women of every country would stand for sane conservatism and a high standard of morality. They are less sensual, less criminal and certainly more sober than men. By all means let the women vote."

My own opinion, if you would care for that, is that universal female suffrage is more important for the progress of humanity than the destruction of the bastille. All men of intelligence who have studied the question are in favor of female suffrage. Condorcet in France, Mill and Gladstone in England, Lincoln in America, would have given women the right to vote.

GOSSIP OF DRAMA ALL OVER THE COUNTRY

Mme. Bertha Kalich, Yiddish
Tragedienne, Begins New York Date February 14

AMERICAN STAGE SUFFERS
FROM UNDERWORLD PLAYS

Nance O'Neil's Triumphs Lead
Her Ambitions to Play
Shakespeare in Paris

(By JAMES GRANT THURSTON.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—There can be no contradicting the assertion that our national drama, as typified in the New Theater, will be elevated by the acquisition of Mme. Bertha Kalich, the Yiddish tragedienne. Mme. Kalich will make her first appearance at the New Theater on February 14th in "The Witch." This play is the first new one to follow "Twelfth Night." The actress has been ill for some time and her present appearance in rehearsals for "The Witch" constitutes her first public appearance for several months.

"The Witch" was written by H. Wiers-Jensen, a Norwegian, and was produced in 1909 at the National Theater in Copenhagen, where it created a sensation. It is founded upon conditions in Norway in the year of 1692 and a number of changes were necessary to adapt it to the American stage. These were made by Professor Hagedorn, instructor of English in Harvard University.

The cast will include Guy Bates Post, Beverly Sills, Ben Johnson, William McVay and Albert Bruning, all members of the New Theater company.

MISS ALLEN'S TOUR.

Miss Maud Allen, who is engaged upon her first American tour in this city, is showing something new in the dancing line. Fresh from London and Paris, where she won laurels, the fair dancer took New York's breath away with a version of the bare-limbed art fantastic and artistic in extreme. Miss Allen, according to her press agent, is appearing in a dance made famous on the banks of the Nile 3000 years ago. This particular dance is supposed to have been a great favorite among the Egyptians. Manhattan theater-goers who saw Gertrude Hoffman in the spring dance thought that the limit was near, but Miss Allen shows that there isn't going to be any limit.

UNDERWORLD THEMES.

The American stage is being deluged with Parisian underworld themes, out of which the Apache dance, in "Paris by Night," stands all alone. The Apache dance, as the name indicates, is a wild eccentric among the Apaches of Paris. To those who don't know a Parisian Apache corresponds to an American yegman. From what I have seen of the dance of "Paris by Night," it requires nothing more than a very muscular man and a woman with India rubber bones. The dance grew out of a common incident in underworld Parisian life, when an Apache's girl comes in at night and announces that she has earned no money for him. Then starts the dance.

"Fast music, professor; ragtime, ah, thank you. The man runs across the stage and grabs the woman around the waist, bending back her head until she describes a parabola. Then he gives her a shove, which lands her in a heap on the other side. As she arises the man rushes to her and catches her by the ankles, swinging her around something after the manner in which an athlete swings Indian clubs. The Apacheess, if that name goes, describes several circles through the air, falling with what the cub reporter calls a dull sickening thud. This is kept up until both are exhausted, then the dance is over."

The onrush of French risqué plays is on in earnest. We have "The Belle of the Boulevard," which has been stopped by the censored New York police three times, "The Girl in the Taxi," which is now thrilling Chicago "Paris by Night," "The Queen of the Moulin Rouge," not to mention others en route.

MISS GLASER BETTER.

Lulu Glaser, who has now completely recovered from her illness, inaugurated her season in "One of the Boys" in New Haven this week. "One of the Boys" is a musical comedy of the present-day standard in the cast are Harry Welch, Edith Sinclair, William Glaser, Edward Favor and others known to musical comedy audiences.

FROHMAN SUCCESS.

Charles Frohman has added another success to his long train of triumphs in his newest musical comedy, "The Arcadians," first tried out at the Liberty Theater and found good. "The Arcadians" is the successful 20th century version of the delightful music of Lionel Monckton and Howard Talbot, and second, for the endless humor, real humor, of Connie Ediss. Percival Knight, the English comedian, fills the role of Peter Jocky, a jockey with a wasted life, but we never get a chance to laugh at the woes of Peter; Percival won't give us pause in our mirth. I like "The Arcadians" for the simple reason that it gets away from the old stage scenes about Broadway and Forty-second street. The scene is laid in England, and right merrily it shifts from foggiest London to the "Askwdance" course. There is no end of dancing in the comedy and Miss Ethel Cadogan, the English comedienne, has more than charmed the critics with her song and her work. There is source need to mention the fact that there is no plot. It is a musical comedy, you know.

GOING TO PARIS.

Miss Nance O'Neil, David Belasco's starlet in "The Lily," has found out that a human being is never satisfied. After having won success, fame, wealth and a glowing yellow and purple Chinese gown in her dressing-room at the Stuyvesant Theater.

"Isn't it odd that one can't be satisfied?" declared Miss O'Neil as she sat in a flowing yellow and purple Chinese gown in her dressing-room at the Stuyvesant Theater.

MAXINE'S THEATER.

We have had the fair Maxine Elliott with us this week, a sort of inaugural for the season. Miss Elliott opened her New York run in "The Inferior Sex."

DRAMATIC GOSSIP.

"A Brace of Burglars," a vaudeville sketch, is being tried out here after a successful run in the West. The sketch was written by Fred Beaman, whose literary scalp belt is bulging with successes already.

Holland was chosen as the place for Willie Collier to sport himself in his new play, "A Lucky Star," which is to be seen here at the Hudson Theater. The play is adapted from an automobile story written by the English family of Williams.

Miss Edna May Spooner has entered upon an engagement which will last in New York late on in the spring. She has just finished a long Southern tour through New Orleans, Atlanta, Birmingham and other cities.

JEFF IS PUZZLE

Champion's Condition Is Riddle Which Is Baffling Fight Fans

(By Eddie Smith.)

THE physical condition of James J. Jeffries bids fair to become as all absorbing a subject to the American people as the citizenship of a man to become the President of the United States, and judging by the houses he is drawing throughout the country with his all-star aggregation of athletes, the people are willing and anxious to pay from $1 to $2 for the chance of settling this much disputed subject for themselves by seeing him work with Sam Berger in the three-round boxing exhibition that means nothing.

Even though the big match seems to be a mangled mass of nothing from which no one can even determine whether or not the thing will ever come off, the fans are always eager to listen to argument as to his condition. The stories that have been coming from the East and North, where he has been working with the show, to the effect that the big fellow has lost all of the superfluous flesh that he was carrying when he started on his tour of the country, seem to please the fans, and with the loss of this flesh they seem to become reassured that the big man is in a fit condition to battle for the world's championship and the largest purse ever offered for a fight between two human beings.

In this belief the fan is all to the good, for while it is absolutely necessary that the champion should lose the great bulk of this weight if by no means proves that he is fit to fight such a worthy opponent as Jack Johnson. But it is not fit and ready for a hard struggle, for we have no way of determining this fact any more than the critics of the East and not nearly so much, for they have seen the big man in his present condition and we have not. The idea we are trying to convey is that the simple reducing of the flesh will not put the champion in condition to fight, and while on this subject it reminds me of the manner in which one of the foremost critics on this coast sized up the condition of old Peter Jackson when the big negro was training for his fight with Jim Jeffries.

CONDITION HARD TO JUDGE.
The critics, with a few other sporting men, visited the camp of Jackson at Alameda, and after watching him go through his daily work in the gymnasium the sporting men turned to the critic and asked what he thought of the old fellow. "He may not be as good as he once was in the ring," said the critic, "but to watch him work in the gymnasium, I must say that he has no different to me now than he did ten years ago." It was apparent to everyone that the old fellow was just a shadow of his former self and it was afterwards revealed, through a confession made by Jackson, that the old timer had trained on a quart of gin a day—and yet this expert thought he worked as good in the gymnasium for that fight as he had worked ten years prior to it when he was in his prime.

There is a world of argument that can be advanced to show that Jeffries can round into condition, and that the thing no one knows at this time, but the evidence for the reduction of flesh is a bad thing with the same Mr. James J. Jeffries.

RICKARD'S STRONG PULL.
One of the prophets of pugilism, who has been touting Salt Lake City as the probable place of the holding of the Jeffries-Johnson contest and Rickard as the promoter, let out a secret that he has been carrying under his hat for some time, that while no particular secret to the people of the Mormon City, it has not been told here.

It appears that some time ago Rickard was banqueting at Salt Lake, and at the table were some of the biggest real estate men in the city, business men, bankers and the like. Mr. Knox acted as toastmaster for the occasion and the informant says that Knox holds the same position, relative to finance, in Salt Lake that Mr. Hellman does in San Francisco. At this banquet the men pressed Rickard for his pluck in bringing the big event to Salt Lake, and assured him their support in the undertaking. Rickard responded by saying that he had every hope of bringing the fight off there and with their aid.

Now, the man who has argued all along that Tex would land the plum for Salt Lake, takes it for granted that Rickard will have such influence behind him that he will be able to bring the Governor to the belief that the Johnson-Jeffries battle is to be a boxing contest and not a prize fight. The Governor has said time and again that he has no objection to boxing contests, but that he will not stand for prize fights, so if the smooth Mr. Rickard can make him believe that the coming contest is purely and simply a boxing contest he will be allowed the privilege of staging the bout.

MCCARTHY'S GREAT SHOWING.
The sample of pugilism offered the fans by Tommy McCarthy in his contest with John Thompson Friday night was of the highest order, and it is a shame that more of the young men in the game do not try to master the game in the same manner as the little bricklayer. All during the contest he stood erect and blocked and punched with the precision of one of the good old-timers you hear so much about. And Tommy been one of the roughest, ugliest fighters who are unable to move about on their feet he came to last out in a hard battle with a tough customer like Thompson.

Tommy may be criticized for running away too much, but it was his only chance of lasting the limit, and during the running he did a great deal more clean landing than his opponent, and in the last round, when he had every reason to believe that he could last the limit, he stood his ground like a major and exchanged punches for many minutes. Consider that McCarthy put up one of the gamiest battles that has been seen in San Francisco for many a day.

FOUGHT HEADY BATTLE.
From the fourth to the twentieth round he fought on his grit and no matter how fast Thompson came he was always taking a chance at landing a stiff punch, a thing that always spells danger. To the man who stands like a fool and takes a beating, that eventually ends with his going out, is not as game as the man who keeps away from danger, but who is always ready to take a chance when the right opportunity presents itself. The man who stands and takes the beating is a fool, and the man who cleverly avoids it is clever and using his head as well as being game.

In passing let it be said that McCarthy owes much to Spider Kelley for the manner in which he was seconded. The Spider, never forgetting that he had a novice on his hands, passed up the shouting from the corner for fear that he might cause the lad to become rattled and in his corner he nursed him cleverly. At the sound of the bell for every round after the tenth the Spider walked half way across the ring with his man, and the confidence he instilled into the red-headed boy was simply remarkable. Spider seconded him just as a novice should be handled. When the last round was on the second round loose with all the wild vim in his make-up and this enthusiasm led the lad more than many could believe.

GUNBOAT BOXES O'BRIEN.
Luke Marisch, manager for Gunboat Smith, received a letter from his charge the other day that was written just prior to the sailor's leaving for Quaker City. In this letter the Gunboat tells Marisch that he acted as a sparring partner for Jack O'Brien while at Philadelphia, and that during the time that he did so he picked up many new wrinkles of the game that he expects to use on Jack Burns when the men meet in Oakland on the ninth of next month. Gunboat also says that he is much quicker than he was before trying his hand on the fast Quaker boxer.

Coffroth Bets He Will Arrive Here By February 8

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 29.—To Cashman, Special Editor New York American: Saluted for home on the Mauretania today. Vaguered Eugene Corri one thousand dollars I will arrive San Francisco Feb. 8. (Signed) COFFROTH.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Barring accidents, the above cablegram seems to show that James Coffroth, the San Francisco fight promoter, will win $1,000 of the bank of the National Sporting Club's official referee within the next ten days. With ordinary good luck Mr. Coffroth can reach San Francisco at 7:28 o'clock on the evening of February 8. As the cablegram gives him until midnight he will have four and a half hours leeway.

With closer connections than he will be able to make on regular trains he could beat this time as he will have almost a day to wait in Chicago and several hours in New York.

The Mauretania is due at Queenstown tomorrow morning. According to the officials of the Cunard line here he should reach New York early Friday, February 4. She will probably arrive at quarantine the night before and will come up to New York early.

The Twentieth Century Limited leaves for Chicago at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon, arriving in Chicago at 8:30 o'clock the next morning. There Mr. Coffroth will have to wait for the train to New York.

And the businessman and mining men of Salt Lake and any other city are not going to jeopardize an eighth of a million dollars unless they are sure of where they will get off.

Eugene Corri, with whom Coffroth made the wager, is a noted sportsman and the official referee of the kid-glove sporting organization of England. He evidently is relying on forms and delays to win his wager.

Two Out of Three Games Are Played In Catholic League

Only two of the three basketball games scheduled to take place in the Alameda branch of the Catholic School's Athletic league were played yesterday afternoon. Two of the games were played at St. Mary's college gymnasium, but a conflict in the arrangements made it necessary to hold the contests at St. Elizabeth's gymnasium and at St. Joseph's academy. Peralta Park, the former gymnasium, has home five lined up against the students from St. Francis de Sales school; at Peralta Park the academicians engaged in battle with the team from Sacred Heart School, Temescal.

The game scheduled to be played between St. Joseph's Institute and St. Anthony's, East Oakland, will be played at St. Mary's college this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Woman Owns Biggest Racing Stable In U. S.

Mrs. L. A. Livingston has established the unique record of owning the biggest stable of thoroughbred horses in America. She owns fifty-five 2-year-olds—more youngsters than any other turfman possesses, even including S. C. Hildreth, H. Payne Whitney, August Belmont and James R. Keene. Mrs. Livingston has won many rich purses on the turf, both here and in Canada. In fact, Mrs. Livingston's sole object in maintaining a stud near Colburn is to prepare her stock for the great King's Plate, the richest trophy in Canada and one which she contests for every year. She employs three trainers and in addition to the 2-year-olds she owns fifteen 8-year-olds.

MACE WAS FATHER OF BOXING, SAY EXPERTS

Former English Champion Was the Pioneer of Modern Generalship in the Ring According to Fight Students

By W. W. NAUGHTON

Is there a recognized school or method of boxing now, or has the game of the glove come to a pass where originality and individuality means success? The writer inclines to the latter view.

My reasons for asking the question is that an English critic claims that Fitzsimmons is an exponent of the Mace school. Says the writer in question: "English boxing reached its apogee in Jim Mace. Mace taught Foley of Australia all he knew and found Foley wonderfully apt in the assimilation of Mace's knowledge." Then Foley in his turn became a teacher and from his place in Sydney emanated that wonderful band of Australian boxers, Fitzsimmons, Jackson, Slavin, Dawson, Griffo and others who overran England and America and beat every one against whom they were pitted with consummate ease. These men were true exponents of the real English style of boxing and upholders of the American school would, in our opinion, be hard put to it to find their equals at the present day. Jackson, could he only revisit these "glimpses of the moon," would we feel convinced, be only too delighted to attend to Mr. Johnson's requirements; Bob Fitzsimmons, in his prime, would have proved rather too hot a handful for Messrs. Langford, Ketchel and Papke; the unbeaten George Dawson would be quite equal to holding Battling Nelson at bay, whilst what Griffo would have done to all the featherweights, with the possible exception of Driscoll, will hardly bear thinking about. Truly there were giants in those days and they boxed in the true English style—the old English style which some would have us believe is antiquated and out of date.

There is food for thought here. A fellow with a gift tongue, an active brain and some knowledge of his subject, could make a plausible argument along a half dozen different lines. He could undertake to prove that it isn't so much that the English style is antiquated and out of date as that the English exponents of things pugilistic are slower thinking and slower moving than the exponents of the British and Australian prize ring. He could take than former terms of the British and Australian prize ring, yet we have the stand that the "Mace school" has been absorbed in the American school and so revamped and improved upon that it has been lost sight of almost entirely, or he could hold the whole discussion by insisting that every successful boxer is his own schoolmaster. When he instanced such capable performers as Jack Johnson, Stanley Ketchel and Battling Nelson his position would be a hard one to attack.

MACE SYSTEM NOT OVERPOWERING.
To daily with the Mace school of boxing for a while. There is no denying that when Peter Jackson and Bob Fitzsimmons, George Dawson and a few others came to town from Australia they were a revelation to the followers of Mace. The most perfect exemplification of Mace's ideas of the art of self-defense were to be found in Peter Jackson's work, yet we have the record for it that Jim Corbett, a self-taught American pugilist, stood up to Jackson in a battle that almost achieved a record for longevity and found an antidote for everything that good old Peter, with all his basic knowledge of the Mace system, attempted.

This is not a disparagement of Jackson, who, I have always held, was one of the greatest heavyweights the game has known, but just to suggest that the Mace system was not perfect enough to be overpowering.

As another setback for the "Mace school," I recall in the case of Abe Willis, bantam champion of Australia, who was brought here to box George Dixon before the California Athletic Club about twenty years ago. Willis was a pupil of Foley, who had been a pupil of Mace. He was a compact, round little fellow who was effective in the Mace system, yet he was a tremendously pronounced pugilist.

The Mace blows were the old straight-from-the-shoulder assaults to which the Englishman still pins his faith. The smash that stung Willis and prevented him from getting in his best kicks during the five rounds which he boxed, was the left rip that won for Dixon in most of his contests. It started its upward flight somewhere about Willis' hip and it found lodgment beneath his chin. It was the first time in the little Antipodean's life he had sampled such a crazy, crashing clip from a glove, and no doubt he wondered how it was that the Mace school had not devised a block or get-away for just such cases.

It was plainly to be seen that he did not recover fully from the Dixon rip, and while he fought like a wasp for the better part of five rounds, he was finally "sent to the hospital."

FIGHTERS WHO KNOW NO SCHOOL.
These are simply one or two instances that occur to me where graduates of the Mace College of Boxing ran against snags in the shape of American pugilists who were known as natural fighters and claimed allegiance to no particular school. These men were the disciples of Jim Mace had an influence for good on American pugilism and it is not to be denied. But, as I have stated at the beginning of this article, it looks to me as if the days of the Mace schools and all other schools have passed.

Will some one who thinks otherwise please assign Battling Nelson to some particular school. In Nelson's case it appears that the other man grows weary, and it is as a target for the other man's blows until the other man grows weary, and then he wades in and conquers. When Nelson grows stale through length of time, if another Durable Dane can be located, he may fall heir to the Battler's laurels and triumph over the fellows who have the real science of boxing down to the finest of points.

Then there is Stanley Ketchel, another world's champion. To what school does he belong? To the Mace school? It appears that Ketchel's method of fighting is merely a succession of shifts. He wades in hand over hand, and being possessed of a fine hitting power, he generally manages to finish his man at the first well-placed punch.

Billy Papke—he of the lifting punches—is another who seems to be the product of no particular school, while Jack Johnson has a private punch which deserves to be known as the Johnson punch. It is a certainty all the front rank men in the fighting game appear to be specialists rather than graduates of any common school.

CALIFORNIA PUG STANFORD TAKES TAKES BAD BEATING

PHOENIX NINE INTO CAMP

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 23.—"Porky" Flynn handed Ralph Calloway of California a bad beating tonight at the New American Athletic Club, putting him out for keeps in the seventh round. Calloway opened up very fast, but soon slowed down under "Porky's" stomach and kidney punches. He was wobbling at the end of the seventh and it took only a few punches on the jaw to put him down and out.

Des Moines Aspires to World's Golf Tournament
Des Moines, Iowa, is the latest city in the field with an international golf championship project. The town is beginning the agitation early, for it is proposed to hold the event in 1911. It is difficult to see how it could be called an international championship, but the lesser title will suit the active promoters. The course offered is a combination of the Des Moines Golf and Country Club and Waveland links, pronounced excellent by "Tom" Bendelow and other professionals. It is announced that the project will be promoted by the city's "Booster Committee." That is the way they go after what they want west of Pittsburg.

PRINCETON COACH IN POWER.
William W. Roper, coach of three brilliant but not victorious Princeton football teams, will have practically a free hand now that the power of director of athletics has been conferred upon him.

Will Test Validity of Utah's Boxing Laws if Necessary

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Jan. 28.—Can Governor Spry of Utah enforce the law as it stands on the statute books and still be unable to prevent the scheduled fight between Jeffries and Johnson?

That is the question that not only remains unanswered by the followers of the fight game, but also by men voiced in the technicalities and intricacies of criminal law as well.

"When does a boxing contest become a prize fight? On the answer to this question depends whether or not the two best men in the ring can meet in Utah's Capital City next Independence Day."

Men learned in law points differ; differ perhaps as much as those who know nothing about the statute books of a sovereign state.

That is the most prominent criminal lawyer in the west, himself an ex-justice of the United States Court, says there is nothing on the law books of this state that can stop a 48-round boxing contest. He has offered to test the law if returned to do so.

Governor Spry has never made any statement that can be construed that he will stop a boxing contest. He says there will be no prizefight in Utah. Does he mean that boxing constitutes a prizefight? Answer it.

Now as for the little argument between Rickard and Gleason. Is it really as serious as it appears? Gleason certainly knows the circumstances of Rickard's going to New York and making a bet for the fight. Gleason knows and knows now that the hotel men of Salt Lake and the mining kings of the Intermountain country sent "Tex" Rickard east and gave him instructions to get the fight—get it for Salt Lake. Gleason knows that when $100,000 was offered by the Nevada State Lottery for the fight, the money is up $111,000—ready to go to the fighters if Salt Lake cannot come to its feet.

And the businessman and mining men of Salt Lake and any other city are not going to jeopardize an eighth of a million dollars unless they are sure of where they will get off.

Jack Johnson Has Champion Record In Police Courts

Jack Johnson is champion of champions in the matter of police court records. The black pugilist has been in more mixups with the law in the past year than any other ring celebrity of the present or past, and in a number of cases has been compelled to pay a fine. His latest and most serious encounter with the law is the result of a fight with a white man, which he has also been "fined" for fighting as well as having been arrested for a disorderly conduct. Following is his "record":

May 21, 1908—Johnson's automobile seized by police for neglecting his attachment in suit to recover bond.

May 22—Arrested to settle a bill of $400 previously owed to a woman.

May 30—Arrested, charged with violating the speed laws of Boston, and fined.

June 1—Arrested in Boston in suit brought to collect on debt of $25. Later accused his automobile in a wild ride through the city.

July 10—While at Crown Point, Ind., had a fight with a woman, resulting in a serious hurt as a result of reckless driving.

August 1—Arrested in London, Ohio, on charge of driving an automobile without a license.

January 10—Arrested in Boston, charged with driving an automobile without a license.

January 20—Arrested in New York charged with driving an automobile without a license.

West Oakland Card May Produce Lots Of Vicious Slugging

The three ten-round triple main-event contests that are to be staged at the West Oakland Club next Tuesday night seem to have caught the fancy of the boxing fans, for while there are no stars on the programme the card has the appearance of being one that will give the fans plenty of action for their money. The reappearance of Fred Cooley here will be pleasing news for the fans, who remember some of the game battles that he put up here prior to his trip East. He is to be opposed by Lew Taylor and as the men are about the same size the battle should be one in which slugging will be the main factor.

If there is any one thing that will cause the fans to get on their tip toes it is a slugging match between heavy weights, and this should be one. Freddie Brooks and Kid George should put up a contest that will be replete with hard fighting, for both are particularly anxious to get a chance at a slugging match. Billy Grupp and Eddie Hubbard will meet in the remaining contest. Hubbard is a new one from the north and is said to be a very good man. He is giving some weight to Grupp, but he is so confident that he wants to fight winner take all.

Soccer Program Promises Good Sport

G. W. L. D. For. Argent. Pts. Vampires ..... 12 3 1 3 40 17 19 Thistles ..... 11 7 1 3 32 18 17 Burns ..... 10 6 1 5 27 23 17 Independents ..... 12 5 2 5 24 20 20 Barbarians ..... 11 2 4 2 24 31 8 Californians ..... 12 2 12 25 35

Two pairs expected to play an ineligible man.

TODAY'S SOCCER SCHEDULE.
Freeman's Park—Thistles vs. Independents.
Drumman, referee.

Albion—Vampires vs. Albion Rovers.
Ashkan, referee.

Alameda—Burns vs. Barbarians.
Duncan, referee.

Presidio, San Francisco—San Francisco vs. United Californians.
Terry, referee.

The league was not held last night as the Independents over the Thistles, the defeat of the Burns would put the four teams on an equal basis, with the Thistles having the best of the argument by having played one game less.

Although the Rovers have lost two more games than the three other teams, they have a better goal average, a fine tribute to the shooting abilities of the team. They have also scored more goals than any other team in the league, which shows their defense to be the strongest in the league. For all round football the Rovers are ahead of all the others, as streak of bad luck just allowing them to play first prize.

THISTLES AND INDEPENDENTS.
These two teams will be the attraction at Freeman's Park this afternoon. Although occupying a rather low position on the league table, the Independents are no mean opponents.

Both the Rovers and the Thistles have lost all their games by close margins. Selfishness and the front rank seem to be the cause of their defeats recently. The prediction that the Thistles have been taken from the Thistles team when the Albion Rovers play them is a foreboding one. Both teams are confident of victory, and a rousing game should result.

ALBIONS AT FRUITVALE.
The local soccer team will camp on the hill slopes of the Fruitvale grounds today. They will be opposed to the league leaders, the Vampires. The Vampires would rather play a win against the Rovers than a draw with the Burns, but as a rule fail to come through. Both Billy and Neil will be able to turn out. It will be the cup ties before the winners of the local team will be able to secure their place in the league.

The Vamps will never get a better chance to win, and they will be a big crowd at Fruitvale to see them try.

GOOD GAME AT ALAMEDA.
What promises to be a first class game and a hard one, too, will be played between the Burns and Barbarians. The Burns are a team that has always to be reckoned with, at it is apt to give the best team a fight, and it is for them to give the Burns a right hard hour and a half of it.

The Californians will oppose the San Francisco at the Presidio.

The following dates and referees were selected at the meeting of the California Football Association.

February 6—Sacramento vs. Jubilee Rovers, at Oak Park, Sacramento; Jory, referee.
March 6—Independents vs. the Rovers, at the Sacramento game, at Oak Park, Sacramento; Jory, referee.
March 6—Albion Rovers vs. Burns at the Presidio; referee, Ashkan.
March 13—Vampires vs. Thistles, at the Presidio; Drinnan, referee.
March 20—Barbarians vs. San Francisco, at the Presidio; Wardlaw, referee.

John A. Drake Plans To Re-enter Racing
John A. Drake, who, in the halcyon days was one of the biggest owners and plumpers in the East, is going to get back in the game again this year. Drake and John W. Drake were partners and owned five, ten and twenty thousand dollar bets with them were too common for comment. Mr. Drake is a liberal nominator to the future of 1912. The 1912 fatuity already has 450 entries against 280 for 1911. But of course that is too far away to worry about.

Alameda May Be Scene of Nelson And Wolgast Bout

The Alameda Athletic Club has been reorganized and Al Moffitt of Oakland has been elected manager and manager. It is the intention of the Alameda Club to try and bring some of the big contests off there and there is at the present time on foot a plan whereby Moffitt will co-operate with Sid Hester in the promotion of the Nelson-Wolgast scrap at the base-ball grounds on Webster street in Alameda. There has been nothing definite done in the matter, but at the present time it would seem that the city of Alameda had a very good chance of witnessing a forty-five round contest for the world's lightweight championship of the world. Hester will try once more for a permit at Colma and even if he is granted the permit he may stage the big battle on this side of the bay.

Change the Date of Cross-Country Race

The date of the cross-country race to be held under the auspices of the Athletic Association has been changed from March 27th to March 20th and the date for the closing of the entries from March 19th to March 12th. It is found by the cross-country committee that the date originally set conflicted with the meeting that has been scheduled to be held at Shellmound Park, in which the members of the Swedish American Athletic Club expect to compete, and the day was changed in order to give these runners a chance.
